Castro Wants More

LONDON (UPI)—Cuban Premier Fidel Castro was reported Wednesday to have sent a new trade mission to Europe to try to buy heavy machinery as controversy continued over deal for sale of $11,000,000 worth of British buses to Cuba.

Britain, concerned over angry American reaction, said it was powerless to halt the sale of the 400 buses because the arrangement was a private deal. A spokesman for the British Leyland Motor Corp. said delivery of the buses would begin in April.

Reports from Havana said the new trade mission was going first to Prague and then planned stops in London, Paris and Vienna.

Road Idea

U.S. Aid In B.C.?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senator Mike Mansfield called Wednesday for the U.S. and Canada to share the cost of building the Alaska Highway. The senate majority leader introduced a bill to authorize appropriation of money if Canada agrees to pay at least half the cost.

He said the U.S. should join Canada in the work even though the road is entirely on Canadian soil. The funds would be used for the Canadian portion from Dawson Creek to Fairbanks.

The legislation would require that Canada agree not to charge tolls or to apply taxes against U.S. users which are not applied equally to Canadians.

Trapped Miner Rescued

MACKAY, Idaho (AP)—Miner Stanley Johnson was rescued from a 12-by-six-foot underground cell late Wednesday after being trapped more than 27 hours by a mine cave-in.

Rescuers drilled into the side tunnel that was Johnson's sanctuary from falling rock 1,158 feet below the surface. Then they pulled him to safety. He was cold and tired from his long ordeal but otherwise in good condition.

Quietly Helped Jews, Says Paul

Pius Did All He Could

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Osservatore Romano said Wednesday the late Pope Pius XII did all he could, sometimes acting secretly and "with true heroism," to aid Jewish victims of Nazi persecution during the Second World War.

The Vatican City newspaper was commenting on Pope Paul VI's vigorous defence of Pius XII Sunday

during his pilgrimage to the Holy Land.

Osservatore Romano said Pope Paul's comments to Israeli President Zalman Shazar concerned "a well-known theatrical work." He was obviously referring to German author Rolf Hochhuth's play, The Representative, which criticizes Pius' role during the Nazi oppression of the Jews.

"It is false that the tragedy of the Jews and of so many creatures judged at the time as of inferior descent was not understood or shared," said Osservatore. "The opposite is true: the pope and the church did what they could with an assiduous effort, often hidden and hence ignored by many, a daily effort, sometimes carried out with true heroism."

"Nor did they fear also to go beyond the limits that a certain common sense insisted on assigning to their action in history. Nothing that touches man can leave the church and the visible head that leads it over the centuries indifferent."

"Everyone, even those who do not share the Christian faith, must look at the church with confidence and hope. She has not betrayed and she will not betray."

Coffin

HANGING PROBE ORDERED

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec government Wednesday ordered a royal commission investigation into the trial and execution of Wilbert Coffin, hanged in 1956 for the murder of three American hunters.

The decision, taken at a cabinet meeting, was announced by Attorney-General Rene Hamel. It followed revival of a controversy on the question whether a miscarriage of justice occurred in the Coffin case. Publication of a book late last year claiming that Coffin, a Gaspé prospector, was innocent, provoked the issue.

ONE MEMBER

The commission will have one member — Mr. Justice Roger Brouard of Montreal Superior Court.

The order — in council setting up the commission specifically orders an investigation into "the credibility of statements" made by Francis Thompson to the police in Miami, Fla., in 1958.

LATER RETRACTED

Thompson told police he committed the murders, but later retracted the statement.

The commission was ordered to inquire into "the actions of officers and police agents and all other persons having participated, directly or indirectly, in the preparation and presentation of the evidence used in all procedures which led to the execution of Wilbert Coffin, Feb. 10, 1956."

INNOCENT

Appointment of the royal commission follows publication in Montreal of a book by Jacques Hebert titled J'Accuse les Assassins de Coffin, (I Accuse Coffin's Assassins) which claimed Coffin was innocent of the 1953 death of three American hunters from Hollidaysburg, Pa. Technically, Coffin was convicted of the death of one of the hunters.

Premier Lesage, who was standing beside Mr. Hamel when the announcement was made, said Mr. Hebert would have a chance to call witnesses to present his side of the case.

Showdown Demanded

TORONTO (UPI) — Held Scott, New Democratic member of parliament for the Toronto riding of Scarborough, said last night he will ask Justice Minister Linard Chevrier to table in the Commons all correspondence between Ottawa and Quebec City in the Coffin affair.

Eastern Quake Biggest Since '52

OTTAWA (CP)—The largest earthquake in Eastern Canada since 1952 was recorded early Wednesday by the seismology division of the Dominion Observatory.

It was largely on the strength of the higher commodity trade surplus this year that Finance Minister Gordon predicted Monday that end-of-1963 figures would give Canada a balance Continued on Page 2

'Messiah' Purges Police Force

ACCRA (UPI)—Ghana president Kwame Nkrumah Wednesday ordered the arrest of this African nation's former opposition leader and purged top police ranks in fierce retribution for last Thursday's abortive attempt on his life.

A government announcement said detention orders were issued against former opposition leader Dr. J. B. Danquah, deputy police commissioner, E. D. Amanin and assistant police commissioner M. K. Awuku.

In addition police commissioner E. R. T. Adjetey and seven assistant police commissions were fired.

Danquah, Amanin, and Awuku were being detained under the preventive detention order which a person can be held without trial for five years.

Nkrumah, 54, and dubbed "the messiah" by his followers, had been expected to carry out the purge ever since his dramatic escape from the third attempt on his life in 1946.

FIVE SHOTS

In the shooting attack last Thursday, five shots were fired at Nkrumah as he walked to his car from his heavily-guarded office at Flagstaff House in Accra.

Only last month Nkrumah showed his strong hand when a court acquitted former foreign minister Abo Adjetey and information minister Tawiah Adamafio and former executive secretary of the convention peoples' party H. Coffie Crabbe on charges of treason which stemmed from a bomb attack on Nkrumah in August.

Nkrumah fired 69-year-old Ghana Chief Justice Sir Arku Korsah the day after the acquittals.

Nkrumah Took Off When Bullets Flew

ACCRA (AP)—President Nkrumah may not have been the main target for five bullets fired in his direction last week.

A widely circulated unofficial report in Accra, the Ghanaian capital, tells of a personal feud between Nkrumah's bodyguard, who was killed in the gunplay, and a young policeman held as the attempted assassin of the president.

Salifu Dagarti, 30, the slain security guard, is described as a harsh disciplinarian who had quarrelled with the accused slayer, Police Constable Berth Nicholas Kwame Ametewee, who was assigned guard duty near the president's office.

At his side as Nkrumah descended three steps toward the limousine. At least six other persons—a chauffeur, policemen and office staff—were within 30 yards of Nkrumah.

A uniformed policeman walked swiftly toward the president and opened fire. He was less than 20 feet away.

Bad Seed

MOSCOW (Reuters)—A Soviet newspaper has disclosed "alarming" shortages of seed for spring sowing and criticized inadequate preparations for the use of fertilizers.

Raab

He Led Austria Back to Liberty

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Former chancellor Julius Raab died Wednesday night, remembered by his countrymen as the man who led Austria back to independence after the Nazi and post-war occupation.

Long a sufferer from diabetes and a liver ailment, the 72-year-old Raab was stricken at Baden-Münster, and lapsed into unconsciousness as he was being brought to Vienna's Floridsdorf Hospital.

Wednesday morning Raab fell into a deep coma, received the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church, and died, his wife, Hermine, at his side.

Parliament Archaic Says Grit

FORT ST. JOHN, B.C. (CP)—Agricultural Minister Harry Hays, said Wednesday that Canada's system of parliament is antiquated.

Mr. Hays said he gets quite frustrated at times in parliament because there is so much to be done and everything takes so long. He said the whole system should be overhauled.

The Minister said Canadian-American trade relations have been generally deteriorating in recent years. He said that on a recent trip to Chicago he expressed concern to the American government about five bills before Congress which would have an adverse effect on agricultural trade.

Sukarno in Philippines

'Maphilindo' Parley Urged

MANILA (Reuters)—Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio hinted Wednesday that his country hopes for another Southeast Asia summit conference including Malaysia whose establishment Indonesia opposes.

Subandrio was speaking to reporters after the first meeting in a new round of talks between Indonesia's President Sukarno and Philippine President Macapagal. Subandrio said "we started as two; we hope to finish as three."

He said that the day's discussions a joint statement was issued saying both nations agreed to "reaffirm adherence" to the August Manila agreement and to continue to work for the "living reality" of a "Maphilindo" confederation of the three "Southeast Asia nations of Malay stock — Indonesia, the Philippines and Malaysia."

Sea Search Goes On

HONOLULU (UPI)—The widening search for the missing U.S. Navy ship USS Scorpion continued Wednesday despite disappointment in all new clues.

Canada's U.K. Trade Up Millions

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's trade surplus with Britain has ballooned so big, so quickly, that it now almost covers this country's traditional huge deficit with the United States.

Figures released Wednesday for the first 11 months of 1963 show a Canadian deficit with the U.S. of $500,900,000. All but $15,200,000 was covered by the $485,700,000 surplus on trade with the United Kingdom.

With Canada also earning larger surpluses in other overseas markets, the overall excess of exports over imports in the first 11 months was $319,600,000—15 times bigger than the $21,300,000 surplus for the same period of 1962.

This sharp improvement was due partly to a continuing surge of exports, accelerating late in 1963 with large grain shipments to the Soviet bloc. Exports in the 11 months were 8.3 per cent higher than a year earlier. In November alone the gain was 14 per cent.

Meanwhile, imports also were rising quickly to meet the higher consumer demand at home. Though the cumulative

11-month figures show 1963 imports ahead by only 1.2 per cent, they increased 11.1 per cent in November and imports from the U.S. that month were 9.6-per-cent higher.

Trade Minister Sharp, who forecast recently a "quite substantial increase" in Canada's exports in 1964, also cautioned that mounting domestic demand also could bring a resurgence of imports—straining the balance of payments—unless the export position is even further improved.

Johnson Springs Surprises With Budget, Uranium Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson told an astonished, applauding and partly skeptical Congress Wednesday he is making an unprecedented slash in uranium production and trimming the U.S. budget to a surprising $97,900,000,000.

Russia Hears It All

MOSCOW (UPI)—The official Tass news agency Wednesday stressed President Johnson's call for a "world without war" in his first State of the Union message.

The speech was broadcast in its entirety in Russian by the Voice of America about 30 minutes after Johnson began speaking. It came in loud and clear to listeners in Moscow.

It was 9 p.m. in Moscow and two late for official Soviet comment. But Tass, quoted by Moscow television, transmitted from Washington a factual report which led off with Johnson's words: "Our ultimate goal is a world without war."

Canadian Deals Unhurt

OTTAWA (CP)—President Johnson's decision to reduce American production of enriched uranium by 25 per cent by June 30 will have no effect on Canadian uranium exports to the United States.

Shipments of uranium will continue under present contracts until the end of 1966.

Just Jobs

Oswald Map Doubtful

IRVING, Tex. (UPI)—A much-publicized map found in accused presidential assassin Lee Oswald's room may have been only a map from a service station marked at places where he applied for work.

Various reports had said there was a map with marks on it to show the Texas School Book Depository, the presidential parade route and the path of bullets that were to snuff out President Kennedy's life.

There were about eight or 10 marks on the map, she said, "just dots and lines."

ALL THE PLACES
"It looked as if he marked all the places he had applied for jobs," Mrs. Paine said. "There was about a 3/8 inch line at the Texas School Depository but there were no markings for a parade route or for the bullet's trajectory."

There were no x's on the map," she said. There had been reports the depository was marked with a large X.

BY CHANCE
Evidence indicates Oswald took his job at the depository by chance, rather than by premeditation. Mrs. Paine said she discussed with a neighbor Oswald's difficulty in finding work.

The neighbor said her brother, Wesley Frazier, 19, had recently found work at the book depository and suggested Oswald try there. He applied Oct. 15 and began work Oct. 16 at $50 a week.

But Johnson promised that the "full strength of our combat defenses" will be maintained and that he will launch a $1,000,000,000 offensive against poverty in the U.S.

The man who has been president only seven weeks set forth for the first time in this U.S. election year the plans and programs on which he intends to build his record.

It was the shortest State-of-the-Union message—an annual report on government policy in the coming year—in three decades.

Johnson embraced the programs of his predecessor, the late John F. Kennedy. But he

Warning to Khrushchev

The message ran about 2,900 words. It was interrupted 80 times by applause. Sometimes Democrats alone provided the applause.

The president held out in the message a friendly hand but also waved a warning finger at Soviet Premier Khrushchev. "We intend to bury no one," Johnson said in measured tones, "and we do not intend to be buried."

The president beckoned to Russia to go along in reducing her own production of uranium. This is a vital ingredient for nuclear missiles and nuclear submarines.

The president said the U.S.

Cooperate to Hit Moon

Johnson also invited the Soviet Union once more to co-operate in reaching the moon—a proposal Kennedy first advanced in September, with little resultant Russian enthusiasm.

But the announcement that the budget the president is sending to Congress on Jan. 21 calls for only $97,900,000,000 in spending for the 1965 fiscal year packed perhaps the biggest surprise.

Administration officials at one time were saying that the budget had been going up an average of $5,000,000,000 a year, and on this basis it would approach $103,500,000,000 for the year starting July 1.

The way it stands now, the $97,900,000,000 will be $500,000,000 less than the spending estimated for this year under the last Kennedy budget.

Accompanying the budget disclosures was another effort for fast action on a bill to cut taxes $11,000,000,000 in a move the administration says will spur the U.S. economy.

Along with the Johnson remark about not burying anyone and not being buried, the heaviest applause crashed through the House chamber when Johnson got around to civil rights.

He said that this is not merely an economic, social, political or international issue but a moral issue that must be met by passage this session of the strongest civil rights bill in a century.

added some Johnson touches, such as a plan to boost the rate of pay for overtime in some industries to discourage overtime work and open up opportunities for more jobs.

Johnson said: "It is a budget in which we have tried first to cut away all fat and waste in every agency and department in the government; second, to stop the needless spending of a single dollar; third, to take that investment and put it in people and their unfilled needs; fourth, to keep our defence establishment in lean, hard, fighting shape with the fat eliminated."

intends to make new proposals at Geneva later this month toward control and eventual abolition of arms. He added: "Even in the absence of agreement we must not stockpile arms beyond our needs or seek an excess of military power that could be provocative as well as wasteful."

"It is in this spirit that in this fiscal year we are cutting back our production of enriched uranium by 25 per cent, we are shutting down four plutonium piles and we are closing many non-essential military installations."

"And it is in this spirit that we call on our adversaries to do the same."

Cyprus Rivals Shake Hands As Barricades Come Down

NICOSIA (Reuters)—Greek-Cypriots removed most of their roadblocks in the old, walled city centre and adjoining quarters of Nicosia by mid-afternoon Wednesday under an agreement with the Turkish-Cypriots, who are in the minority.

But at that time many Turkish-Cypriot barricades still remained in Turkish-Cypriot areas.

A British patrol reported seeing Greek and Turkish-Cypriots shaking hands near the cease-fire line at one point where both sides had removed their barricades.

The removal of barricades and roadblocks was part of an agreement, announced Tuesday by the British high commissioner, Sir Arthur Clark, to restore freedom of movement and communications throughout Cyprus following Christmas clashes between Greek and Turkish-Cypriots which claimed an estimated 200 to 300 lives.

Clark said it was hoped normal freedom of movement and communications would be restored by this morning, with the exception of Lefka, a mining town where there were communication difficulties.

News of the decision to remove the barricades and restore normal conditions came after three weeks of strife in which the Christmas truce and establishment of a neutral buffer zone ward off the threat of civil war.

How Johnson Hit Deficit

Billion-Plus Slash Job Done on U.S. Defence

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Johnson's first budget will be unveiled in two weeks and it likely will show a drop in defence spending of at least two per cent—a decline of well over $1,000,000,000—for the next fiscal year.

The U.S. government originally had budgeted for $31,000,000,000 for basic Pentagon expenditures in the current year which ends next June but additional outlays likely will boost the year-end total to about $32,000,000,000, a defence department spokesman said Wednesday.

Defence Secretary Robert McNamara anticipates spending will drop back to less than $31,000,000,000 and on this basis the president Wednesday forecast that his total budget spending for the fiscal year opening next July will be $97,900,000,000, down $500,000,000 from this year's total and the first overall decline in five years.

On this basis, Johnson anticipates he will have a budget deficit in 1964-65 of $4,900,000,000, down from the $10,000,000,000 now estimated for the current year. This would be the fifth consecutive budget deficit, boosting the national debt to somewhere in the vicinity of about $318,000,000,000.

Johnson told reporters before he delivered his State of the Union message to Congress that the Pentagon had asked for $59,300,000,000 in new obligatory authority for the next fiscal year, but he would only allow $49,700,000,000.

Rule Relaxed For Horses

VANCOUVER (UPI)—Union and management on the bottlenecked Vancouver waterfront Wednesday threw out the rules in order to get two Irish horses off a British freighter.

The nine-year-old mare Gay Dora and seven-year-old gelding Music Man arrived aboard the Picardy. Rules on union work on the waterfront were suspended for the unloading of the animals—who had been without exercise on the seven-week journey.

Whose Homeland?

MR. PEARSON seems obsessed with wooing the favor of Quebec to almost any limits. The idea obviously is to get that province back solidly into the federal fold as the bulwark of the Liberal party fortunes, as so often it was in the past.

His latest gambit in this direction is somewhat startling, however. He depicts Quebec as something apart and distinct from the federation of Canada.

Talking on television the other day on this subject he offered these words: "We must recognize that Quebec in some vital respect is not a province like the others but a homeland of a people."

This will surprise Canadians of other ethnic derivation who for generations have believed this country was also their homeland.

In what way is Quebec a "homeland" denied those of English-speaking heritage, or for that matter all newcomers who seek a haven here and choose to acquire the tongue of either of the two main racial streams which originally settled and developed this country?

At the beginning both English and French staked their claims in Canada and settled here to make it their homeland. The United Empire Loyalists who moved north rather than become Americans did so with the avowed purpose of making this their home. Every subsequent immigrant to this country chose equally to do the same thing.

It is astonishing if Mr. Pearson, whose knowledge of Canadian history can scarcely be doubted, deliberately ignores this in order to slant his preference so strongly to Quebec.

The prime minister is concerned, he says, about the unity that should mark confederation. Separation of one province as a particular "homeland of a people" as though each and every other province was not a "homeland" of similar vein is certainly not the way to ensure the unity and strength of confederation.

Outright Stupidity

SENATOR Barry Goldwater—the Arizona Republican who has high hopes of not only getting the GOP presidential nomination but following it right through to the White House—has discovered for himself the point where mere irresponsibility ends and outright stupidity begins.

And having found it, he has laid full claim to its ownership through the simple expedient of telling the world that if he becomes president of the United States he will instigate and support a military invasion of Communist Cuba.

"I would train (the Cuban refugees), supply them and get them there," he asserts, adding that he would also "be inclined" to provide American air cover for the attack.

Fortunately such rantings will hardly impress the majority of sensible Americans whatever their political faith. By continuing to air such dangerous views Senator Goldwater seems bent on destroying himself long before he has the chance of attaining his apparent ambition of destroying his own country and the rest of the world with it.

Undue Pessimism

THE ADVERSE view of two coastal shipowners of the chances of successful operation of a B.C. ferry between Vancouver Island and Prince Rupert would seem to stem from experience in materially different circumstances. Their criterion of success and that of the government would hardly be the same, but apart from that perhaps they are unduly pessimistic about the amount of traffic the new route will generate of its own accord.

They foresee a serious lack of winter business for the ferry; one says the government "will lose its shirt" as a consequence. Certainly traffic in the darker months cannot be expected to be heavy, and it may be that schedules in this season will have to be adjusted accordingly, even though surely there will be some movement between the United States and Alaska on this route in preference to the inland roads.

But it will be the year-round average that counts, and in this connection it is encouraging to note the record of the Alaska Marine Highway system connecting to Prince Rupert from the north, which in its first year carried almost twice as many passengers as anticipated for the fourth year of its operation and almost a quarter more vehicles.

Even were the ferry to run at a loss, however, the deficit on this part of the government's marine transport system could not be considered entirely apart from the profitable operation of the other ships.

Nor as Mr. Dan Campbell, M.L.A., has noted could it be viewed separately from the economic benefits to the province resulting from the opening of this "Route of the Haida." The new service is bound to have pronounced effects in development, in tourism, and in provincial revenues as a consequence through retail sales and gasoline taxes.

In this framework it is pertinent to observe that no one says British Columbia loses its shirt on the construction and maintenance costs of its expensive highways. These do not pay for themselves in any direct way. But who would therefore do without them?

Hansard Titbits

Odd Nod

MR. DIFENBAKER: . . . I know that the Minister of Public Works, who is an excellent lawyer, will be the first to agree that what has been done has been illegal. He affirms that. Parliament is now being asked—

Mr. Deschatelets: On a question of privilege. Because I am an excellent lawyer I would like to raise a question of privilege. I have never admitted that anything that has been done so far has been done illegally. . . .

Mr. Diefenbaker: In the first place may I say that when the hon. gentleman bowed his head in a vertical position, I took it as a sign of approval. Apparently the hon. gentleman follows the custom in Nepal, I think it is, where the elevation of the head in a vertical position expresses a negative.

Mr. Nicholson: I think the right hon. gentleman mistook the nod which was given in recognition of the statement that my hon. colleague is an excellent lawyer.

Mr. Diefenbaker: No, no one with the innate modesty of the minister would have gone as far as to indicate approval of that, much as he may have felt it within his soul.

Thinking Aloud

" . . . of shoes, and ships, and scaling waa . . ."
By TOM TAYLOR

EACH time I see my young nephews I am amazed by their inches. It is not so much that soon I fear I shall get a crick in my neck merely to talk to them, although this is serious enough, but that I wonder when on earth they are going to stop.

Growing higher and higher, I mean.

To do these nice boys justice the fault is not theirs. They belong to their age, and that age, somehow, because of calories, vitamins, some alchemy in the air, or what have you, is producing a race of giants.

Giants on occasion there have been, in fact as well as in fairy tales, and I read not long ago about an African tribe, far removed from the strifes of the Dark Continent, living practically unknown and uncontaminated by others, who were immensely tall, slim, and lordly in height.

Food, air, the mysterious rots which have decreed that western man, particularly North American western man, should reach for the skies literally and not simply in a space capsule, is not the reason for this tribe's physical eminence. They eat, live and grow as did their ancestors.

Not so our own youngsters, who now put to shame even their own tall fathers and their not-so-tall uncles.

This indeed is the puzzling feature of the upstanding stretch that seems untouchable among modern youth. Six-footers-plus there are aplenty who derive from five-foot-six, seven and eight-inch parents. The height of the latter seems to have no bearing at all on their progeny.

There are many movements of history; this is certainly one of them and I would like to know how the experts account for it. From his own comparatively scant inches—how deflating these now seem and how his nephews must wonder why he was content to remain among the undistinguished ranks of the medium heights—this writer can only view the movement, and movement it certainly is, twice over, as he would a miracle.

It passes his comprehension. Nor does it comfort him to learn that in the land wherein he received his early impetus towards physical expansion, upwards, a similar phenomenon is afoot. Not, he feels sure, that it has yet reached the impressive ceilings of North America, but one noble ear is complaining in the House of Lords that British beds are too small. The ear's six-foot-one-and-one-half inches, I gather, elongate themselves in repose so that his toes crunch against the foot of the bed.

And so, obviously, his government should do something about it. Who else?

At 71 years of age, however, the ear is scarcely relevant to our theme. He has been before his time, as it were, and does not belong to the generation which is shooting skywards en masse at an alarming rate.

And while statistics reveal that in his homeland boys, and girls too I suppose, they are never backward in following male trends, after all, are tending to make their forbears appear as pygmies, the movement across the Atlantic cannot be compared to that so well visible flower in North America.

It is simply that the human race, or the western section of it, having begun with mediocrity in height—shades of all those vanished military heroes of the past whose suits of armor fit only our nine-year-olds, or thereabouts—has suddenly decided to throw off the shackles of its ancestors and reach for their true place nearer the sun?

I don't know. I am baffled, wholly and completely, by this amazing biological development. Is it something in the air, tuning what we call the rising generation to an ever rising pitch? Is it the food, as processed we thought, mistakenly, that the life was being pressed out of it?

There must be an explanation, somehow, somewhere.

Not of course that enlightenment will do anything for this writer. He will go on, doomed shortly to a crick in his neck every time he looks his nephews in the face.

Ah, well, he can sleep in his bed in comfort, and there is no danger of him bumping his head on the lintel of a doorway.

Today In History

By The Canadian Press

The first shots of the American civil war were fired 108 years ago today—in 1856. The supply ship Star of the West was fired upon by southern shore batteries as it steamed up the harbor at Charleston, S.C., with 250 troops and supplies intended for Fort Sumter.

The southerners scored two hits on the ship, which turned back before reaching its destination.

1816—The safety lamp invented by Britain's Mr. Humphrey Davy was first used in coal mines.

1960—Egypt began construction of the long-planned Aswan Dam on the Nile River.

Ottawa Offbeat

He May Make History

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

THROUGH sheer ability and special qualifications for the exacting responsibilities, Stanley Knowles, the quiet Socialist, may yet make Canadian history as Parliament's first permanent speaker.

One of the "old" OCF parliamentarians, and even yet a bit unfamiliar in the ranks of the "new" NDP members, he occupies a very particular or private corner in the public mind. He has been enduring. Except for the four-year break in his parliamentary career, he has been there in the Commons, session in and session out, while other OCF-NDP members have come and gone and been forgotten.

Knowles was something like old M. J. Coldwell, so long the OCF national leader, in that if people didn't always agree with him—and they certainly didn't—there was never any question that they always respected him.

And that respect, perhaps, largely was for his parliamentary scholarship.

Stanley Knowles knew what was tradition, custom and precedent in parliamentary procedure when most others, including a couple of former prime ministers, wondered.

And he has taken the Commons by the hand on a couple of memorable occasions and led them out of the bind of their own bewilderment.

There was never any question that Stanley Knowles was the most knowledgeable parliamentarian in the working mechanics of the Commons. There was never any question that if anyone was qualified to be the Speaker, permanent or otherwise, it was he.

And there was never any question that he couldn't possibly make it as an OCF-NDP member.

But destiny beckoned him seven years ago from across the floor of the House, and may be doing so again.

In 1957, John Diefenbaker, to almost everybody's not excluding his own surprise, had become prime minister, and wrote to Stanley Knowles, suggesting, but really making no firm offer, that he might be Parliament's first permanent Speaker.

Unfortunately for Parliament, the two old friends never really got together on it. Stanley Knowles didn't follow it up in positive fashion, and John Diefenbaker, after the first exploratory suggestion, didn't pursue it.

They had been in the Commons since the early 1940s, Diefenbaker entering in the '40 election and Knowles in '43, and together they had fought the Battle of the Pipeline.

That was the first retreat of what rapidly became the utter defeat in collapse of the once seemingly indestructible Liberal "empire" that had endured for 22 years back to 1955.

So they were brothers-in-arms, sharing a truly smashing victory, but out of pride or something, neither of them made that necessary second move that might well have made Stanley Knowles Parliament's first career Speaker.

Now there is a distant rumble of political thunder that out of the possible—but not very probable—alliance between the Liberals and the NDP, currently being negotiated in the lower echelons of command in both parties, might emerge Stanley Knowles, and again as permanent Speaker.

If a political Liberal-NDP marriage were arranged, gossip has it that such an appointment for Knowles, together with a cabinet post for socialist leader Tommy Douglas and perhaps for his deputy, Douglas Fisher, would be part of the ceremony.

What makes Stan Knowles that good, that now the Liberals, like the Conservatives, would want him as permanent Speaker?

It's simply a matter of excellence. Knowles knows his stuff, better than anybody else in the Commons, not excluding any of the Speakers except possibly Rene Beaudin who made the running of Parliament his life and work before his career blew up in the political explosion of the Pipeline.

Knowles made his first Commons speech back on February 3 of 1943. When it was over, Mr. Speaker Allison Glen, observed that the speech had been read but that a freshman MP could not really be expected to be familiar with all the rules.

For perhaps one of the Commons commandments—like most such laws, usually broken—is that speeches must be made, never read.

But poor Stan Knowles, fresh and green from the Prairies 21 years ago, had been assured by his colleagues that it would be all right to read his maiden speech, since the Commons and Mr. Speaker were understandingly tolerant of new MPs.

Then, when he sat down, perhaps well content that he hadn't done badly, he was horrified to see the Clerk of the Commons, Dr. Arthur Beauchamp, approach Mr. Speaker and audibly call his attention to the fact that the new MP from Winnipeg North Centre had been reading from a manuscript.

It, of course, was a rebuke and a humiliating one, too. In dismayed silence, the gaunt, dedicated OCF freshman accepted it, and in the pain of his acute embarrassment, made two resolutions:

He never again would read a speech in the Commons (and he never has);

He would learn the rules of Parliament, page by page, cover to cover (and he has).

Stan Knowles' standing in Parliament as a living breathing book of Commons laws, is such that nobody would be particularly surprised if he sometimes were quoted as the authority on traditions, customs and rules of the House rather than Beauchamp or Bourinot. Which perhaps proves that you don't have to be dead to be good enough to be recognized. . . . and that in this tricky business of running Parliament, if you're good enough, you might just get to be Canada's first permanent Speaker.

In His Prime

Some reporters take a great delight in calling Mr. Diefenbaker "an old man." As a matter of fact, there is only 18 months' difference in the ages of Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Pearson. Anyway, Mr. Diefenbaker is in his prime; look what the Liberals have gained since taking office—they have adopted every measure the Progressive Conservatives brought in while Mr. Diefenbaker was prime minister.

Even the U.S. president, Mr. Johnson, is confiding in and asking the advice of Mr. Eisenhower, who is 73, on questions of the day. The top men today in world affairs are not young men, they are men who have had long experience which counts for as much in this day and age. A young man could easily put the country on the rocks unless it is a John F. Kennedy and they are hard to find these days. Sir Winston Churchill was in his prime when he was John Diefenbaker's age. I do hope writers and reporters will drop harping on Mr. Diefenbaker's age, as they can't let it all through the last election.

The committee of the Surplus Food Stall wishes to most sincerely thank all those who have in any way contributed to the success of the stall during 1963.

It would be impossible to thank each one separately. Wholesalers, firms and individuals have all assisted. The Elks have not only supplied the building rent free, but have also taken their turn with the North Douglas Rotary and the Labor Council in supplying men and cars for pick-ups and deliveries.

Also the Ladies of the Royal Purple have supplied hot coffee for those waiting in line to receive their hampers.

The Oak Bay Delicatessens and girls from CGIT have greatly helped in sorting food and packing parcels. This is just to name a few. Others have sent in contributions and prefer to remain anonymous. Without the whole-hearted support from the community we could not carry on.

Japan

Staunch Friend

By HOWARD GREEN
Former Secretary of State for External Affairs

In the Pacific the defence line for the West Coast of Canada and the United States commences in Japan and runs south through the islands of Okinawa and Formosa to the Philippines.

This is a fact Canadians should keep in mind in 1964 as the whole Pacific area moves into greater prominence on the world scene than for many years.

It should not be overlooked either when they discuss the question of what attitude should be taken towards mainland China—which continues to demand that Formosa be turned over to her. If she were to drop this claim she would receive a good deal more sympathy in many quarters than she does at present.

On occasion the situation on the far side of the Pacific has been very grim—witness the war in Korea and the present troubles in Viet Nam. But throughout one of the bright spots in the area has been the staunch support given to the so-called Western nations by Japan and the Philippines. These two countries have never wavered in their firm stand against Communist aggression whether that be by Russians or Chinese.

Canada has few contacts with the Philippines but many with Japan; always important, these contacts are steadily becoming more so.

When in 1959 I first led the Canadian delegation at the United Nations General Assembly I was delighted to learn how closely the Japanese worked with us there.

In fact Japan turned out to be one of our best friends and I presume that situation has continued to the present time. I cannot remember one issue upon which they took an active part against us and on many the two nations stood together.

The Japanese were always particularly strong in their support of resolutions dealing with the need for disarmament negotiations and the dangers of radiation and nuclear testing. This was not surprising for their people always had been subjected to the devastating effects of a nuclear bombing attack.

The relationship between the Japanese foreign ministers and myself was always very friendly and cordial and this was true generally of dealings between the governments at all levels. Japan was one of the first nations with which Canada exchanged ambassadors and the representatives of both countries have always been in the top brackets of the respective foreign services.

One might have expected much unpleasantness over trade negotiations, for in recent years Japan has faced heavy adverse balances in her trade with Canada. Yet it has usually been possible to reach amicable arrangements which prevent Japanese manufactured products invading our market to the serious detriment of our own industries and their employees.

Most Japanese purchases in Canada are of raw materials and these are not bought just to help us out. Japan needs them to keep her own industries going for she cannot get them in sufficient quantities from Asia or elsewhere.

If she were able to do so we might very soon find our favorable balance of trade fading away.

The co-operation between the two countries has been increased too by personal visits at the top level. While we were in power two Japanese prime ministers—Mr. Kishi and Mr. Okada—visited Ottawa, and Mr. Diefenbaker visited Tokyo. These visits were extremely successful and did much to develop understanding.

Another means of furthering co-operation was by setting up a joint ministerial committee—composed of several ministers from each country. It was supposed to meet twice yearly and the first meeting was duly held in Tokyo but Canada has dragged her feet on this arrangement—largely due to uncertainties in the political situation here. The Japanese place a very high value on meetings of this sort and Canada would be wise to do the same.

No nation has made more amazing progress in modern times than Japan. This is true in many fields—education, health, business, industry, research, parliamentary government, and almost every other human activity. And she has succeeded in re-establishing herself after a disastrous defeat in the last war.

If the centre of danger and discord in the world shifts to mainland China in 1964—which it shows signs of doing—Japan will be a vital factor in any steps taken to deal with this new situation.

For this reason alone, in addition to those I have mentioned, Canada should continue to work with her just as closely as possible and to increase the friendly contacts.

If this is done and is reciprocated by Japan, great benefit will result for both nations.

Land Deal Could Solve Explosive Cyprus Mess

By Dr. ARNOLD TOYNBEE

It looks as if in Cyprus the price of political stabilization is going to be the segregation of intermingled nationalities that are irreconcilable.

Since four-fifths of the Cypriots are Greeks, and would vote for political union with Greece if they were allowed a free choice, a solution on lines of nationality would require the waiving of the present constitutional ban on enosis (union with Greece) and this, in turn, would involve the migration of the Turkish minority, considering what the present temper is on both sides.

Of course, if this solution were proposed by itself, and not as part of some wider territorial readjustment, it would be utterly unacceptable, not only to the Cypriot Turks, but to Turkey as well.

Taken by itself, this solution of the Cyprus problem would be wholly to the advantage of Greece, and Turkey would no doubt oppose it to the length of going to war.

Fortunately there is a possible territorial quid pro quo which Greece might be asked to give to Turkey in exchange for Turkey's consent to the union of Cyprus with Greece.

Within the present frontiers of Greece there is a border province, Western Thrace, in which the population is as preponderantly Turkish as the population of Cyprus is preponderantly Greek.

If Greece were to retrocede Western Thrace to Turkey as part of a deal in which Cyprus would be united to Greece, two national States would each obtain comparable accessions of territory, and two local majorities would each be satisfied politically; and, though this would be at the cost of the local minorities, this would be at any rate a lesser evil than anarchy in Cyprus leading to yet another Graeco-Turkish war.

Unless a deal on some such lines is proposed no one can foretell how it would be received. Its merits would be that it would give satisfaction to the Turkish majority in Western Thrace and to the Greek majority in Cyprus, and that it would restore to Turkey a province of comparable magnitude to Cyprus in compensation for the union of Cyprus with Greece.

The award of Western Thrace to Greece in the Lausanne peace settlement of 1923, which followed the Graeco-Turkish war.

There is enough perversity and obstinacy on both sides to wreck any proposal for a compromise involving other territories besides Cyprus itself. However, one thing seems certain—unless the problem is dealt with in some wider setting the outlook for a peaceful solution is unpromising.

He Could Win, Too

Goldwater's Ideas Totally Opposed To Ottawa Thinking

By CARMAN CUMMING from Washington

Leaders of the neutralist world who call United States policies rigid and reactionary have a chance now to look at Barry Goldwater, and ponder.

They'll have plenty of time to look. The chivalled features and granite-hard foreign policy ideas of the Arizona senator will be much on display in the next few months as he seeks the Republican presidential nomination.

And the world may learn for the first time the extent of present-day U.S. conservatism.

By contrast, President Johnson will appear enlightened and forward-looking to many parts of the world.

The thought of a Goldwater in the White House gives most U.S. allies the cold shakes.

Yet it is probably true that, except during the McCarthy years, U.S. conservatism has never been taken as seriously outside the U.S. as inside.

Canadians living in the U.S. are often surprised at the extent of disillusionment among Americans with foreign aid. The United Nations, the chances for improving East-West relations.

Often, particularly under President Kennedy, it seemed the administration was much more liberal-minded than the American people.

Thus even a year ago few foreign observers rated Goldwater a serious contender for the presidency. He still is an outside bet, but he leads the race for the Republican nomination and it is not inconceivable that he could win the presidency in November.

The implications for Canada and other U.S. allies are immense. A short sampling of his views shows the wide rift with Ottawa thinking, for example.

On the UN, he has said: "I believe the United Nations' value is to be found as of today in the form of a debating society, for no one can prove that it is a peace-making or peace-keeping organization."

Contrast that with Prime Minister Pearson's statement before the UN last fall that "the first concern of the United Nations... is the keeping of the peace."

On foreign aid, Goldwater has said: "If we have to live with foreign aid—and I don't think we have to live with foreign economic aid—I think it should be used as a rifle aimed at specific areas where we can gain an advantage over the Russians."

Pearson, in the same UN speech, said that, second only to keeping the peace, the "great task of international statesmanship today must be to help improve the living standards of all the world's peoples."

On relations with the Soviet Union, Goldwater says: "I have always favored withdrawing recognition from Russia... I think we lent dignity to a movement that doesn't deserve the respect that goes with formal recognition."

Put that beside External Affairs Minister Martin's New Year's statement: "I am convinced that only through frequent exchanges with those countries which are ideologically separated from us will international tension be reduced, prejudice eliminated and reasonable understanding achieved."

Desperate Plea to Moscow

Sukarno Begs for Aid

By RICHARD HUGHES from Hong Kong

President Sukarno of Indonesia has sent his leftist Minister of Economic Affairs, Dr. Adam Malik, to Moscow with a desperate plea for urgent Soviet economic aid.

Dr. Malik told close friends in Jakarta before he left that he would reinforce and document President Sukarno's appeal with explicit evidence that the Chinese-dominated Indonesian Communist party has begun revolutionary sabotage operations inside Indonesia.

The Moscow-Peking ideological struggle has now become a cynical bargaining point in Indonesia's economic crisis.

It was learned in Hong Kong through western intelligence sources that the Chinese-led Perbum Oilworkers Union sabotaged the Shell Oil Company pipeline installation between the Tandjong oilfields and Balikpapan port in Borneo, more than two weeks ago, that two fireships are standing helplessly by a huge and rising lake of wasted oil near the field and that jungle fires have been ignited in the vicinity.

The loss of oil has been estimated at about 300,000 barrels. No reports of this sabotage have been officially released in Indonesia.

The wastage of oil reportedly continues at Tandjong and the recent withdrawal of British experts is delaying desperate salvage operations. The Tandjong oilfields have an estimated production of 2,000,000 tons a year and, since the installation of the Shell pipeline in March, 1962, at an investment of at least $112,000,000, represent a potential increase of 10 per cent in Indonesian oil production.

International politics, the Moscow-Peking cold war and domestic economics are now inextricably merged and confused in Indonesia.

There are strong indications that Comrade D. N. Aidit, pro-Peking head of the Indonesian Communist party—at 2,000,000 the strongest outside the Communist bloc—has been embarrassed by the precipitate action of party extremists of Perbum in organizing the Tandjong sabotage.

Dr. Malik's hasty and unannounced visit to Moscow strikingly reflects the current mood of uncertainty, emergency and alarm in Jakarta.

Is Ghana Fit for the 'Club'?

The announcement by President Nkrumah that he will shortly abandon democratic parliamentary government for a permanent dictatorship has increased speculation about Ghana's future relationship with the Commonwealth.

Recent actions by the Ghanaian leader in his country have made several other Commonwealth leaders and representatives doubt whether Ghana is fit to remain in the "club."

Some of the most outspoken comments have been made privately by representatives of other African states.

One was that if the Commonwealth were to mean anything more than a trading group there must be some deference, at least outwardly, to the ideals personified by the Queen as head of the Commonwealth.

President Nkrumah has made himself deeply distrusted by several Commonwealth African governments, notably Nigeria, Sierra Leone, Kenya and Tanganyika. This has arisen mainly from his attempts to interfere in those countries' affairs.

For some time the Ghanaian government has failed to exercise its right of close consultation with fellow Commonwealth members.

There have been instances of confidential information supplied by the British government to Ghana on the "Commonwealth net" being "leaked" either to the public or to the governments of countries outside the Commonwealth.

This has caused anxious heart-searching in London and elsewhere.

There is another point of Commonwealth concern, particularly in London. In recent years, the Commonwealth Relations Office has struggled to prevent the emergence of "two-tier" Commonwealth thinking, by which the old members (Australia, Canada and New Zealand) are treated differently from the post-war members.

There is general anxiety that the behavior of Ghana tends to induce such a double view, to the possible detriment of other newer Commonwealth members.

Mayor Gives Priority to Old Projects

Victoria Catches Its Breath

By IAN STREET

It is a measure of the progress achieved during the past two years that Mayor Wilson's 1964 inaugural address this week was something of a disappointment.

It said, in effect, let's keep going ahead.

But an era of unprecedented action, characterized by the progress on Centennial Square, re-organization of the police department and approval of a new headquarters building and magistrate's court, and correcting of some of our more pressing traffic ills, has left us a bit jaded.

After all, vigorous action of this kind traditionally hasn't been Victoria's strong suit. Nevertheless the three main courses of action set out in the mayor's speech, if carried through, will make this a year of solid achievement.

There is landscaping of two blocks on Broad Street as a pedestrian mall and putting some greenery back into Bastion Square, acquisition of additional property in the Memorial Arena block, and launching of another attack, better organized this time, on the downtown paint-up program.

None of these ideas is new. In fact city hall staff were actively working on them during 1963.

around for a long time, but now there is a new urgency that will undoubtedly lead to some quick action in the near future. The Broad Street mall has been around for some time, as well. Competition from Mayfair practically ensures results on this one.

Two abortive tries have already been made to get the paint-up scheme started. A color scheme of sorts was drawn up and a handful of buildings were painted. Most of these were directly, as in the case of the city hall, or indirectly connected with the city. And there was no real campaign at any level to really sell the scheme.

Recently the city has taken steps to put its house in order. Former city planner Roderick Clark was made head of a new special projects division and relieved of much routine work to concentrate on downtown beautification.

Mayor Wilson, in his speech Monday, made pointed reference to the need of full support of the plan by merchants and property owners in the downtown area. Without them it cannot succeed.

The rather vague reference to the forthcoming decision on whether to establish a capital budget covering the next three to five years indicates a wariness on the part of the mayor towards what is still an innovation out here. He's not alone in this attitude, but it should be remembered that little more than a decade ago only a handful of B.C. municipalities had a yearly operating budget, something that is now accepted by all.

There was bitter disappointment, too, for at least two veteran aldermen who had been hoping the 1964 committee postings would bring them a coveted seat on the finance committee. But the mayor, apparently reluctant to upset the present working arrangement of the public works group, fitted newcomer Robert Baird into the slot vacated by Dr. Lewis McLean.

Mayor Wilson predicted a year of solid progress. It should be that, with perhaps a surprise or two thrown in, like increasing the city's investment still further in Bastion Square.

Lotus Shuns Anxious Canadian

LONDON (CP) — A Canadian racing driver continued his "I want a test" picketing of the famed Lotus car firm Wednesday—but his resources appeared running out.

John Hughes, 25, of North

Bay, Ont., patrolled the factory at Cheshunt, 16 miles northeast of London, with a placard reading "I am just a damn good Canadian driver wanting a test to drive."

Hughes received a generally friendly reception from passersby but a decidedly cool reception from the Lotus management.

Lotus head Colin Chapman saw him for only two minutes Monday, when Hughes began his picketing.

Chapman said it would be uneconomic for Lotus to risk a test drive with everyone who asked.

Another spokesman was more blunt.

"We'd lose a lot of cars that way," he declared.

Best of Moderns In CIL Collection

By INA D. D. UTHOFF

The current showing of paintings from the Canadian Industries Ltd. collection is one of the most representative of the best in contemporary painting that we have been able to show at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

It is not a large collection, only 14 paintings, but they have been chosen by some of Canada's best known art gallery directors and preserve a balance of representational and abstract work of mostly eastern Canadian painters of renown.

It is only a part of the main collection which started in 1962 and was assembled by Dr. Evan Turner, director of the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts. It consists of 40 paintings which, when not out on loan, are hung in the Canadian Industries Ltd. House in Montreal.

Three from this collection will be part of the exhibition of Canadian painting at the Tate Gallery, in London, England early this year.

Two others now on loan to the Museum of Modern Art in New York will tour the United States.

The large canvas La Soeur Blanche by Jean-Paul Lemieux is distinguished by the subtlety of the painting of the white robe and the emphasis on the dark eyes of the sun, mere black spots in this otherwise highly keyed color scheme. The serenity of the figure is compelling.

Near it hangs a typical Riopelle with its richly clotted paint and enormous vitality.

Transitory Clay by Jock MacDonald, one of the members of the Painters Eleven group and originally a graduate of the Edinburgh (Scotland) School of Art, is the culmination of a lifetime search for his personal expression in painting.

This was painted in 1959 and pointed a new direction in his work.

Much of his life had been given to teaching, first at the Vancouver School of Art and in later years at the Ontario College of Art. A dedicated teacher, he was much loved by his students, and his death in 1961 was a great loss to Canadian art.

A giant of Canadian painting.

ing. Goodridge Roberts, is represented by one of the finest landscapes he has ever painted, Port Au Perail, Quebec.

The only western Canadian painter is Ed J. Hughes, who lived at Shawnigan Lake and shows added richness in his handling of paint in a farm scene near Chilliwack.

There is some lovely painting in the mountains and trees in this. The stark white of the buildings and snow belongs to the Hughes style, which is meticulous in its attention to detail, and arresting in its emphasis.

I find Alex Côté's Children in a Tree somewhat disappointing. The composition is fussy and there is none of his usual sculptural solidity in it.

On the whole, the representational painting is well ahead of the non-figurative work of Marcelle Ferron who now lives and works in Paris, and of Marcelle Maltais of Quebec City.

There is an interesting little painting by William Kurelek. This shows a sophistication and highly developed personal style.

Jacques De Tonnancour's Open Fields is a gem. The paint is manipulated with wizardry possible only to some one of his experience.

Vancouver Lights Distracting

OTTAWA (CP)—A collision between two freighters in Vancouver harbor Nov. 27 occurred largely because the crew of one couldn't distinguish between the lights of the city and the other ship, a transport department inquiry has shown.

Findings of the preliminary inquiry, made public Wednesday, indicate sailors navigating the Greek freighter Evie could not tell the difference between the lights of Vancouver and the Irish freighter Irish Rowan. Damage was caused to both ships but no one was injured.

Evidence indicated a good lookout was being maintained on both the inward-bound Evie and the outward-bound Irish Rowan. Weather conditions were exceptionally clear with little wind.

The facts about new air fares and cargo rates to Europe, effective April 1st, 1964. What these new rates will mean to you.

All north-Atlantic carriers have agreed in principal on a new, lower fare structure to and from Europe, subject to industry and Government approval. Because all air fares are standardized by international agreement, these new rates are applicable on a per destination basis to all airlines crossing the north-Atlantic. If you are planning to fly to Europe during 1964—either on business or pleasure, one or other of the fare categories outlined below will enable you to realize considerable savings on your air fare over the north-Atlantic. Read on for further details, then ask your Travel Agent for full information, or complete coupon below.

ECONOMY CLASS FARES

From April 1st, 1964 onwards, new, reduced Economy Class fares will be in effect throughout the year. These new Economy Class fares will enable you to fly from Montreal to Paris, for example, for as little as $233.60 one way, or $443.70 return. These rates also permit you to visit Amsterdam, Brussels and London at no additional air fare. During the peak travel periods, (Eastbound—May 22nd through August 3rd; Westbound—July 17th through September 28th) these fares will be slightly higher, but still below previous Economy Class fares.

21-DAY EXCURSION FARES

21-Day Excursion Fares will remain valid during certain periods of the summer, 1964, at new, low rates that enable you to save over $50.00 on previous 21-day fares. A 21-Day Excursion Fare to Paris, for instance, will now only cost $346.90 return. This rate also allows you to visit Amsterdam, Brussels and London at no additional air fare. Under this plan, you are, however, subject to the following travel stipulations: you cannot return from your overseas gateway earlier than the 14th day after your trans-Atlantic flight, and all travel must be completed by midnight on the 21st day after your date of departure. Because these 21-Day Excursion Fares are restricted to certain dates and periods, and to get the best advantage of KLM's multi-city stopover plan, have your Travel Agent help you select the most attractive dates and destination for your 21-Day European vacations. Or call KLM.

KLM'S MULTI-STOPOVER PLAN

For the standard round trip fare between Canada and any city in Europe, KLM lets you visit many additional cities at no extra air fare. In this way, you can stretch your itinerary without stretching your budget. KLM gives you the privilege of city-hopping to a wide choice of extra places, depending on your destination and from where you fly in Canada. And, thanks to KLM's extensive European network—over 40 cities—you have an almost unlimited choice of combinations. Here is one example of how KLM's Multi-Stopover Plan lets you visit 13 additional cities for the price of your standard round trip fare between Canada and Munich. For no additional air fare, you can also visit Amsterdam, Bremen, Brussels, Cologne, Copenhagen, Düsseldorf, Frankfurt, Hamburg, Hanover, London, Nuremberg, Paris, and Stuttgart!

GROUP TRAVEL DISCOUNTS

During the months of June, July, August and September, 1964, Group Travel Discounts will again be available to members in good standing of eligible organizations. Groups must comprise 25 or more members travelling together. The group fare, per person, from Montreal to Paris, for example, will be $362.20 return. And, as before, multi-stopover privileges permitting group visits to Amsterdam, Brussels and London at no additional air fare are again extended. To learn whether your organization is eligible for special group rates and on which dates these special rates apply, see your Travel Agent or call KLM.

CARGO RATES

New air cargo rates commencing April 1st, 1964, and subject to the approval of interested governments, involve reductions of up to 20% at various weights on many commodities comprising the major volume of trans-Atlantic air cargo traffic. The agreement also includes a variety of specially low rates designed to stimulate new traffic and afford the advantages of air transportation on a regular, economical basis to shippers and importers of many commodities currently being moved by air in only limited quantities. In addition, some experimental rates at low levels are being directed at specific markets.

Here are a few examples of commodities favourably affected by the new, reduced air cargo rates (based on Montreal-London tariffs): machines and tools of numerous types, most of which were previously carried at general cargo rates; radios, TV sets, electrical appliances, parts; manufactured textile products; chemicals; removals of households goods and personal effects.

FIRST CLASS FARES

As of April 1st, 1964, first class air fares will be appreciably reduced. This reduction will be of particular benefit to businessmen who appreciate the additional advantages of first class air travel—the higher free baggage allowance of 66 lbs., roomier, more relaxing accommodation and free bar service, superlative cuisine, KLM's traditionally superb service. Flying first class from Montreal to Paris will only cost $414.10 one way and $786.80 round trip—a saving of over $200.00 over previous first class round trip air fares!

YOUR TRAVEL AGENT

Your Travel Agent will help you with all your travel arrangements. He is a specialist. He knows fares, rates, hotels, tours, documents, currencies better than anyone. And all the odd little details. His experience can make a world of difference to your trip. And, as professionals in air transportation for more than forty years, KLM recognize that it takes professionals to plan trips efficiently. That is why that in every city in Canada, KLM is represented by a professional—your Travel Agent. See him soon.

ROUND-ROBIN FAIREST: Almost without exception curling clubs are now running off their men's playdowns with some form of a knockout competition—a double-draw knockout, a double knockout or some variation—instead of the round-robin play which was originally the vogue and which, I am now fully convinced, is the fairer method.

Two factors undoubtedly caused the change. One was that it sometimes happened that rinks which had already been eliminated didn't try too hard in the late stages of the playdowns. Worse, there have even been times when there was more than a suspicion that eliminated rinks have gone so far as to make certain they didn't win because of personal favoritism for or animosity against rinks still in the running.

However, the big reason for the change has really been the tight schedules at most clubs which leave far too little time for playdowns because of trying to get them over quickly so that there will be a minimum loss of revenue or disruption of club schedules.

This, understandably, has to be a consideration. On the other hand, the playdowns leading to a chance at the Canadian championship is the biggest event of the season in club curling and time should be made so that those who are trying for curling's purple heart get a fair chance.

This is something that no knockout competition, no matter how arranged, can possibly give. It is not really a good argument to say that any rink which loses twice has had all the chance it deserves to carry on to the next plateau. There is too much left to the luck of the draw, something which should be eliminated as far as possible in playdown competition.

As a good example we can take the recently-completed playdowns at the Victoria Curling Club, where 11 rinks played it out in a double-draw knockout. That caused five byes in each side and the draw started Keith Dagg, Dr. Dickout and Don Moss in the 16s on both sides while Ken Sturrock and Steve Hayhurst started play in the 8s on both sides.

That in itself was a tremendous edge for two rinks, as the final showed when Dagg went into it with a 7-1 record against the 3-1 record of Sturrock. Not only had Dagg had twice as many chances to lose that eliminating second game but he had had to meet each of the five rinks which could have been fairly classed as having a good chance.

Just the same, the 10 defeated rinks can point out that Dagg didn't have to meet three of the original starting field and that it was quite possible he might have lost a second game along the route. But what is more important, he had to buck odds to do it while the luck of the draw gave an edge to two rinks and in the case of three who had to play an extra series on each side, to eight rinks. Odds have no place in playdowns, yet they are always there for or against, in knockout competition.

A round-robin competition starts every rink even, and it is quite possible at the club level to eliminate the basic weakness of late play too often matching the eliminated against those still in the running by scheduling from a round-to-round basis after the first three or four rounds.

It would be unthinkable to decide the Canadian championship through any form of knockout competition. It has to be just as important to eliminate the luck of the draw in any playdown leading to a chance at curling's biggest prize. It may take more time, and it may be necessary to charge a larger entry fee to try and discourage those who enter "just for the fun of it" without any reasonable chance, but those who have a chance shouldn't have so much left to chance.

THEY DESERVED IT: Let no one think that the above in any way casts any doubt about Dagg and his young crew of Les Brice, Jack Trueman and Barry Harvey not deserving their chance at a zone play.

As has been pointed out, they got their victory the hard way and while, as is usually the case for all winners, they got a break here and there when it mattered, they were the steadiest of all.

Dagg, scored at or about 85 per cent in three of his games, finished well and called a sound, simple game, made possible by the steady hitting of his youngsters. And as good as they were at eliminating opposing rocks, the quartet was perhaps even better when draws were needed.

They may lack experience in playoff play but if they don't permit themselves to be over-awed, they can make things rough for anyone at Courtenay in the zone final on Jan. 19 and 20. They beat rinks which would rate every chance in the zone final and any rink curling 75 per cent or better, as Dagg's did several times, would be tough for the Ernie Richardsons as well as the Jim Tangs.

EXTRA END: With the Pacific Coast Curling Association finals scheduled during the last two days of the men's bonspiel at the Victoria Curling Club, Feb. 5-6, it may be necessary to schedule some bonspiels games at another rink... and while it's three weeks until the bonspiel it might be a smart move to get entries in early. You can almost take it for gospel that the 64-rink limit will be exceeded with seven of the 12 rinks already entered from out of town... the same applies to the ladies' bonspiel at the VCC. It's not until March 5 but there are already 18 entrants... a few years back the PCCA decided to put out a bonspiel calendar listing particulars about bonspiels at PCCA clubs in order to cut down on the unsightly posters seen on most curling club walls. Yesterday, by actual count, there were 19 bonspiel posters tacked up at the Victoria club in addition to the calendar... Marg Brilling, who skips for Mabel Vyner, Phyllis Bird and Betty Browning, will represent Esquimalt in ladies' zone play. Mrs. Brilling beat out Ida Patterson, in the best-of-three final, 9-5 and 11-9, needing only two games.

Cougars Near First Place Cavaliers Down Mercurys

Arena Cougars, getting solid goaltending from Ed Hastings and another hat trick from Don Wilson, trounced first-place Saseaway Canadians, 5-1.

With one minute left in the third period, Dorohoy appeared to have won the game, but he was thrown out of the game when he refused to enter the penalty box.

Cougars, who trailed, 4-2, at one stage, won it on two third-period goals by Anderson, Larry Brooks and Metro Kap-lanchuk got the others, and Fletcher scored once for Mercurys.

At Memorial Arena last night to move within two points of first place in the Victoria Hockey League.

Wilson's three goals ran his total to 21 in 10 games, and he also drew an assist on one of Les Johansen's pair. Meanwhile, Hastings was holding off Canadians, making 24 stops and being beaten only by Bob Holmes in the first period.

In the opener, the last-place Dorman's Cavaliers shaded Suburban Mercurys, as Mercurys' Ed Dorohoy and Cavaliers' Bob Anderson matched hat tricks. However Dorohoy was the buster of the two, also finding time for a misconduct and game misconduct penalty.

Leafs Tie Habs For Second Spot

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs jumped into a second-place tie with Montreal Canadiens in the National Hockey League Wednesday night, overpowering Canadiens 6-1 before 14,036 fans.

Leafs and Canadiens each have 46 points, three behind leading Chicago Black Hawks. Leafs have played one game fewer than Montreal.

The score was tied 1-1 after a fast, close first period, then Toronto barreled into a 4-1 lead in the second.

Frank Mahovich led Toronto with a goal and three assists. Red Kelly scored one goal and rambling in from the left wing to score. He lost control of the puck momentarily, but knocked down Canadiens' Jacques Laperriere to grab it again on Hodge's doorstep.

Keon banged in Harris' goal-mouth pass at 11:16 and Pulford made it 4-1, deflecting Stanley's blue-line shot past Hodge.

Veteran goaltender Johnny Bower grabbed the limelight soon after Pulford's marker when, with Canadiens storming back in an effort to get back into the game, he made three sensational saves on Richard from point-blank range within about 15 seconds.

Canadiens never seemed to recover from this setback and Leafs were in control the rest of the way.

Brewer made it 5-1 with a long screened shot in the second minute of the third period and Pappin counted his fifth NHL goal to close the scoring at 17:10.

assisted on two, with Dave Keon, Bob Pulford, Carl Brewer and rookie Jim Pappin adding the other goals.

BEST MAN

Henri Richard, the best man on the ice for Canadiens, counted their only goal to tie the score 1-1 at 13:15 of the first period.

Leafs, hitting at every opportunity, charged into the lead on Kelly's goal with the game barely five minutes old. The veteran centre backhanded a close-in shot past goaltender Charlie Hodge on a fine play by Mahovich, who dug the puck out of the corner beside the Montreal net.

SCORES ON BROWN

The Canadiens seemed spooked by the deficit and took control of the game in the latter part of the first period. Richard scored on a screened shot after Terry Harper had moved in from the point to set him up.

Mahovich set the Montrealers back early in the second, stealing the puck from defenceman J. C. Tremblay and

Plastered Tape Not Possible Explains Annoyed Dempsey

MODESTO, Calif. (AP)—Former heavyweight boxing champion Jess Willard and the members of the late Jack (Doc) Kearns each claimed Wednesday that Jack Dempsey used loaded gloves to win the title from Willard in 1919.

"He cut me all to pieces and hammered my eyes closed—that's why they gave the title to him," Willard, 82, said at his home in suburban La Crescenta.

"As I recall that night there was a man from Willard's corner and one from mine as I taped my hands.

"If any plaster of paris was used, I certainly was not aware of it. After all, how much of it could be sprinkled on top of the tape? In the first place, the plaster of Paris would not have had time to set.

Loner Pockets Fortune

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A single bettor in the crowd of 9,852 at Tropical Park Wednesday took down the entire twin-double pool—$54,789.20. It was the biggest twin-double payoff of the meeting, topping the previous high of $30,678 Dec. 27.

The ticket was cashed by a man who filled out an income tax form at the cashier's window as required, and requested that he not be publicly identified.

The first half of the twin—the fifth and sixth races—was won by Jury Duty, $43.20, and Fireman's Ball, $17.20. After another longshot, Traffic Sign, $40.20, won the eighth race, only three tickets were alive going into the last part of the twin. In a driving finish, More caught Arc Flash in the final strides to win by one length. The entry paid $19.60.

Yugoslavia First Foe For Canada's Team

LONDON (CP)—Canada's Olympic hockey team will meet Yugoslavia in the two-day Olympic elimination round, a tricky innovation this year that could lead to a major upset.

Jan. 29—Canada vs. Norway or Switzerland 4 p.m. (8 a.m.)
 Jan. 30—Canada vs. Sweden, Italy 8 p.m. (12 noon)
 Feb. 2—Canada vs. Germany-Poland noon (4 a.m.)
 Feb. 3—Canada vs. U.S.-Romania 7:30 p.m. (11:30 a.m.)
 Feb. 5—Canada vs. Finland-Austria 1 p.m. (5 a.m.)
 Feb. 7—Canada vs. Czechoslovakia-Japan 7:30 p.m. (11:30 a.m.)
 Feb. 8—Canada vs. Russia-Hungary 4 p.m. (8 a.m.)

Should Canada be eliminated in the qualifying round, then Yugoslavia would play this schedule and Canada would be dropped to competition in group B.

Leading the assault against Fuesen, 10 times winner of the West German hockey championship, were Ross Morrison of Toronto, Ray Cadieux of St. Adèle, Que., and George Swerbrick of Moose Jaw, Sask., with two goals apiece.

Last year, in the world championships at Stockholm, the group A teams were: Canada, Russia, Sweden, Czechoslovakia, United States, East Germany, West Germany and Finland. Russia won the title and Trail Smoke Eaters placed fourth, Canada's worst showing.

This year East and West Germany will be represented by one team, with Norway or Switzerland favored to graduate into group A to fill the vacancy.

If Canada beats Yugoslavia in the qualifying round, its first game in the Olympic schedule will be against the winner of the Norway-Switzerland game.

'Birds' or Records Barney's on Target

By JOE DUPUIS

ST. LAMBERT, Que. (CP)—Canada's finest skeet shooter was introduced to the sport at the age of 30 during a fit of boredom while serving with the RCAF at Goose Bay, Labrador.

Barney Hartman, holder or co-holder of six world records, recalled the occasion during an interview in the trophy-packed den of his bungalow in this Montreal suburb.

"I had an airman friend at the U.S. base in Goose who was interested in shooting. One day we were looking for something to do when we found a building on the base with 60,000 clay targets. The U.S. bomb dump was full of 12-gauge shotgun shells."

So they built a shooting range.

His first day out Barney pulverized 17 of 25 birds and "was hooked."

Up to that time his only experience with a shotgun was shooting ducks on a prairie farm as a boy. He improved quickly and when he entered his first shoot in 1949 at Hall's he shot 99 out of 100 birds to win the open and closed titles.

Painstaking care of his guns has helped make Barney Hartman of St. Lambert, Que., one of world's top skeet shots.—(CP Photo)

Bakers Scores Interest Chiefs

It's going to be a long, nerve-racking weekend for Neil Sprinkling and Haida Chiefs, although the only basketball action they'll see themselves will be an exhibition game.

While Chiefs are playing Bellingham All-Stars Saturday night at Central Junior High School, their fate in the Inter-City Basketball League will be shaped in Alberni and Vancouver.

STILL CHANCE

Vancouver Bakers, still with a chance to beat Chiefs out for the fourth playoff spot, meet Vancouver IGA Saturday and Sunday. Two wins would tie them with Chiefs and leave the playoff berth resting on the outcome of a Chiefs-Bakers game Jan. 19 in Vancouver.

In Alberni, Athletics and North Van Harleins try to break their first-place tie with games Saturday and Sunday, and these games too mean a lot to Chiefs.

BEST SERIES

Sprinkling wants Athletics to finish first, because if Chiefs can hold on to fourth place it would not up a best-of-five semi-final between the two island clubs. A series like that, with minimum travelling expenses and maximum drawing power, might be the only way Chiefs can finish the season with an even break financially.

The Jackpot

Hotspur Eliminated By Chelsea Eleven

LONDON (AP)—Chelsea kicked Tottenham Hotspur out of the Football Association Cup Wednesday night with a 2-0 victory in a ruthless scrambling match before a hysterical crowd of 70,000.

Thousands were locked out of the ground and the crowds around Stamford Bridge Stadium threw West London's traffic into chaos.

Spurs, with Dave Mackay and John Smith out injured, couldn't hold down the restless Chelsea youngsters. In the 17th minute Bobby Tambling, back at inside right after a month's lay-off, seized on a low cross and pivoted to bang the ball past Spurs' goalkeeper John Hollowbread.

He holds the North American record with the best one-year average—99.5 on 600 minimum targets, with the 20-gauge.

WORLD MARK

He and C. H. McCreery of Ottawa, an old friend, equalled the world record for two-man 12-gauge teams in 1959-60, knocking down 200 birds.

Hartman is co-holder of the world record for shooting a perfect 200 out of 200 score using the 12, 20 and 410 gauge guns. And in Detroit he set a world record—348 out of 350—using all four guns.

LA Sweep Top Event

NEW YORK (AP)—When the underdog Los Angeles Dodgers stormed to victory in four straight games over the mighty New York Yankees in the 1963 world series, it was both the upset of the year and the thrill of the year to the nation's sports writers and broadcasters.

It became impossible to separate those two categories in the annual Associated Press year-end poll because the voting revolved about the one dramatic series almost to the exclusion of everything else.

Oak Bay Girls Beat Victoria

Oak Bay trounced Victoria High 39-26 in inter-high school girls basketball at Vic High yesterday.

Jean Robertson led the scoring for Oak Bay with 18 points, Gaynel Vosburgh had seven, Lynn Haglund six, Marg May-Smith and Pat Barber led Vic High with eight points while Rita Roodbol had seven.

At Uplands Medal Golf Sunday

Victoria District Golf Committee opens its new series of medal competitions Sunday at Uplands Golf Club.

There will be no post entries accepted. Starting times:

9:30—M. Watson, A. Donaldson, L. Gervin, G. Felson.
 10:30—D. McDonald, R. Ross, R. G. Hargrove, F. Burgess.
 11:30—M. Ross, R. Ross, R. McDonald, R. McDonald.

Currently in Europe with Canada's national team, centre Gary Dineen will join Toronto Marlboros of Ontario Junior "A" Hockey League following play in Olympic Games. Marlboro coach James Gregory said Wednesday.

Two minutes later Hollowbread saved a penalty taken by Terry Venables. But, right winger Albert Murray clinched the game for Chelsea in the second half.

Other scores:

THIRD-ROUND REPLAY
 Aldershot 2, Aston Villa 1.
 Bolton 2, Burnley 1.
 Manchester 0, West Brom. 1.

CURLING CAPSULES

Sweeping is of such importance in curling, to my way of thinking, that it is necessary to devote one article to what is generally considered the best method of sweeping. Even for the ladies, using the broom in curling is almost entirely different from sweeping the floor or brushing the dust under the rugs.

The grip is an important factor in sweeping. If you are right-handed you should place your left hand down the handle and the right hand at the top. The left hand should be as far down the broom handle as is necessary to give you proper leverage and balance. This also depends on your height and the strength of your wrists.

There are two lines of thought as to the actual grip on the broom. Some prefer to grip with the left hand palm up, while others use the palm-down grip. I use the palm-down grip.

FEET FIRM

First thing a sweeper should learn is how to sweep without moving the feet, as if you were sweeping a stationary stone. This teaches the balance needed as you have to bend over the stone in a crouching position with your knees bent slightly. It takes a lot of practice to learn to properly sweep a moving stone.

The most effective method of sliding with the rock is a sort of rhythmic shuffle which should be perfected in practice. The forward sliding foot of a good sweeper, who sweeps close to the stone will seldom be ahead of the stone.

Sweepers should sweep directly in front of the moving stone and as close to the rock as possible without touching it with the broom. A stone hit by a broom is removed from play.

Just when to sweep is an important factor. A stone should be swept starting from the first hog line when the player releases the stone lighter than expected, whether it be a draw or for a takeout. I feel that all draw shots should be swept lightly so that the ice surface is kept clean at all times.

The brooms shed straws and if the cup of the stone should pick up a straw or other foreign particle it will shorten and possibly alter the course of the stone. A stone should always be swept when delivered inside the imaginary line of the skip's broom. Good sweeping will help hold it on line.

Although smacking the broom on the ice adds colorful sounds to the game it is not necessarily good sweeping. Bending the broom straws with pressure and reasonably quick action is most effective.

Curling is like any other sport, the harder you work at it the better you are likely to play.

Thistles Suspended

KENORA, Ont. (CP)—The Ontario-Minnesota Hockey League has announced the suspension of Kenora Thistles for an indefinite period.

Thistles have failed to ice a team for their first four games in the four-team international league.

League president Cal Marvin announced the suspension following an executive meeting in Kenora.

His statement said the suspension is effective "pending a ruling to be handed down by the Thunder Bay Amateur Hockey Association."

The Thunder Bay group, to which the Ontario-Minnesota League belongs, is expected to discuss the suspension at a meeting this week.

Thistles, a historic name in Canadian hockey, were reported to be having financial and player difficulties.

It was erroneously reported earlier that the Thunder Bay association had suspended the Thistles.

In Minor Soccer

Five Teams Unbeaten

Five teams in the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Soccer Association are still unbeaten going into weekend action.

Best record of the lot is held by Canadian Scottish of Division VI, which has won 13 games and drawn one. Gyros of Division II have nine wins and one draw; Cosmopolitan Royals of Division III have 12 wins and two draws. Boys Club Reds have posted 12 wins and drawn one match in Division VI and Boys' Club "B", which has played only eight games, has seven victories and a draw.

Boy Dies In Home

Fourteen-year-old Douglas Boudet, 1415 Gladstone, collapsed in his home and was pronounced dead by a doctor called to the scene last night.

The fire department, ambulance crew and city police were called in to help the boy who had just returned from curling. The attending doctor said possible cause of death was a cerebral hemorrhage.

The boy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Boudet.

Parents Undecided

Sex Study: Home or School?

Members of the Belmont High School Association agreed last night that students require sex education but they weren't agreed on whether the education should be provided at home or at school or at what age it should be given.

More than 80 of the association's paid-up membership of 400 saw a film used in sex education in schools; heard a brief talk by health education consultant Mrs. Patricia Kahr and heard excerpts from a doctor's lectures given to students in Chilliwack.

The film dealt with a boy's development into puberty and a taped lecture dealt with the girl's development.

Mrs. Kahr said her purpose in accepting the association's invitation to speak was to find out what parents think and what they want in the way of sex education for their children.

She felt that in addition to fact, students should be educated in attitudes towards sex.

The film and lectures were directed at boys of 13 or 14 and girls of lesser age but Mrs. Kahr felt they might be taught earlier.

One parent agreed that 14 was "far too late" for a boy and suggested the film should be shown at 11 years.

W. H. Parker, school association president, said that sex "has been brought from under the gooseberry bush and out into the open."

The association will probably hold another meeting to discuss the subject further.

No Decision on $2,500,000

B.C. has made no decision on what to do with the $2,500,000 it will get from Ottawa as part of the cost of a centennial cultural centre, provincial officials said yesterday.

The grant was announced in Ottawa a few hours earlier and there was speculation from there it might be spent in Vancouver instead of Victoria.

Premier Bennett, a few months ago said at a press conference that the proposed new $5,000,000 provincial museum here might make an excellent centennial project.

B.C. national centennial committee chairman L. J. Wallace said no decision has been made and details of how it must be spent have not yet been received.

They're All Edible

New display panel of edible B.C. mollusks, prepared by B.C. government recreation and conservation department, went on display Monday at office of Victoria Visitors Bureau. Display will go to government information office in Vancouver and then to other points in B.C. Recreation department official said most of these edible animals are little known on Vancouver Island and B.C. coast where they are found. Commissioner Allan Maclean of visitors bureau shows geoduck, his favorite.

Island Youngsters Awarded 4-H Trips

Four Vancouver Island youngsters, two of them from the Victoria area, will get two-week trips to other provinces later this year in recognition of outstanding 4-H work.

With five others from the remainder of B.C. they will be part of an inter-provincial exchange program supported by the Royal Bank.

Albert Hull, 19, of Langford, will travel to Alberta and 17-year-old Linnet Lannon of Sidney will go to Newfoundland. Karen Oland and Linda Vonnax of Courtenay will go to Quebec and Nova Scotia respectively.

The youth will attend 4-H activities and visit farms in the provinces they have chosen.

Defence Study Planned

Seven Victoria civil defence workers will be among 23 British Columbians studying radioactive defence techniques here next week.

Among the lectures to be attended by the 23 at the Keesler Crossroad civil defence college will be one by a provincial agricultural official on the prevention of food contamination.

The course gets underway Jan. 13. Those attending it will later give lectures on radiation defence in their own communities.

The seven Victoria students will be W. P. Baya, G. M. Neale, F. D. Preston, S. Mottishaw and H. Pillar of Victoria; A. P. Musgrave of Qualicum and R. H. Donnelly of Powell River.

Decision March 4 on Indian Appeal

NANAIMO (CP) — County Court Judge A. J. H. Swencinsky reserved decision Wednesday on an appeal by two Indians convicted of killing game out of season.

The judge said he would announce his decision March 9 on the case, involving rights of Indians of Vancouver Island.

Centre Quiet

With only about two exceptions, cases in Greater Victoria hospital police centres followed the year-round trend during the recent holidays.

The exceptions were purely seasonal — a couple of youngsters who chewed on fluid-filled Christmas tree light bulbs.

Door of Bus Snags Woman

Mrs. Mina McCreedy, 70, of 817 McClure, who apparently caught her arm in a door as she stepped from the side door of a B.C. Hydro bus and was dragged for a short distance, was treated for shock and lacerations in St. Joseph's Hospital yesterday.

She was brought to the B.C. Hydro first aid station by the bus driver and later transferred by police car to hospital.

FALSE TEETH
Need Not Embarrass
Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plates dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just create a little FALSE TEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth firmly, as they feel more comfortable. Does not stain, change color, or wear. On FALSE TEETH, no drug supplies everywhere. Adv.

Never See Mother Again Court Tells Young Thief

CHESTER, England — David Johnson, 20, charged with theft, has been ordered by a court never to see his mother again.

The judge made the ruling after police said Johnson, who has spent most of his life in prisons and reform schools, had fallen under his mother's influence and met criminals with whom she associated.

SANTA MONICA — Comedian Jerry Lewis' wife Paul gave birth to their sixth son. "I'm still going to call it Gloria," quipped Lewis, who had hoped for his first daughter.

BEHUBANESWAR, India — Doctors said Prime Minister Nehru, 74, is recovering rapidly from high blood pressure and a slight weakness in his left arm and leg, and is in "very satisfactory" condition. He may have suffered a mild stroke.

DALLAS — Lee Oswald's wife Marina has accepted the fact her husband killed President Kennedy, said her business adviser, James Martin, so she has no desire to sue Dallas, any government or Jack Ruby. She has received public gifts of $28,000.

NEW YORK — British MP Mr. Martin Lindsay, 58, inherited $250,000 cash and the luxurious apartment and valued art works of Mrs. George Hamilton (Fls) Shaw, even though he never proposed marriage as she had hoped.

OTTAWA — The cabinet committed to life imprisonment the death sentence on Leonard Coombs, 23, of Belleville, Ont., who was to hang Jan. 28 for the slaying of former girlfriend Sharon Frost, 18. The jury had recommended mercy. The Liberal cabinet has committed five death sentences and ordered no executions.

LONDON — Civil servant Norman Sutherland admitted mixing his drinks, "going mad" with liquor and trying to break up London county hall with his tightly-rolled black umbrella. He smashed dishes and dozens of window panes, broke a phone against a wall and dropped a fire extinguisher over two balconies. Said the judge: "I always thought that looking from the outside, the county hall was a civilized sort of place. I thought wrong."

Monopoly Players Bested

The DeMolay Monopoly players in Victoria, who played for 144 continuous hours during the Christmas holidays, had word yesterday that a new record of 336 hours has just been set.

Two dozen high school students from Connersville, Indiana, claimed the world record of 336 hours for a marathon game of Monopoly.

"They must have been playing the same time we were and we are very disappointed to hear the news," said Bob Munn, who organized the Victoria game.

"We will take a crack at breaking their record but we will have to wait for the summer holidays as most of the ones in DeMolay we rely on for the game are in school," he said.

Hedgehopper May Test In Canada

LONDON (CP) — Britain's new super-bomber, the TSR-2, will present extremely difficult testing problems and one newspaper suggested yesterday Canada may be asked to help.

The controversial bomber, now nearing completion, is designed to hedge-hop at tremendous speed and thus elude detection by radar and anti-aircraft missiles.

LOUD BANGS — "Test-flights of the revolutionary bomber producing extremely loud sound-barrier bangs are to start soon—in Britain," says The Daily Express.

"They will go on until public reaction becomes so strong that they have to be switched over."

REPAIR COST

The Australian government was being approached about the possibility of carrying out the tests at the Woomera missile range, the newspaper adds. But the range presented problems of repair, cost and terrain.

STAGE TESTS — "The government may have to approach Canada for permission to stage the tests there."

The Canadian government already has agreed to low-level operations by Britain's V-bomber force over unsettled northern area.

LONDON — Former Labor MP John Lewis, 50, charged with drunk driving, insisted his own doctor be called. The doctor said flatly: "You're drunk." Lewis was committed for trial.

AIX EN PROUVENCE, France — Charles Trenet, famed French music hall singer known as the Singing Fool, was charged, with moral offences against minors, including his secretary, Robert Bernin, 18.

BONN — British soldier Harry Clegram, who deserted to East Germany in 1955, is in army custody after being deported by the Reds following several escape attempts.

BOULDER, Colo. — William Cotton's telephone number is ML 2197. Now his 1964 auto licence plates have arrived. Their number by coincidence is ML 2197.

LONDON — William Eggleston, 44, who told police a werewolf chased him into a hedge, was fined £2 for drunkenness.

QUEBEC — Premier Lesage disclosed a controversial statue of Maurice Duplessis, which vanished from the provincial museum last spring, is in a safe place. He would not elaborate.

BROMLEY, England — City council refused the plea of 224-pound George Bayden for a bigger bathtub in his public housing apartment. He gets stuck in his present tub every bath.

CASTLEGAR — Eamon Adams, 30, was jailed for a day and fined $200 for impersonating a voter in the Sept. 30 B.C. election.

NASHVILLE — Police Chief Robert Kemp suspended patrolmen Donald Dooler and William McCallough for 15 days without pay for competing in a drag race with a patrol car while on duty.

MONTREAL — Cardinal Leger returned home after three months in Rome at the ecumenical council and Africa touring leper colonies.

VANCOUVER — Jack Perry, 47, died after hiccupping for five days.

CARTHAGE, Tunisia — Rue Fahmama, named for the Punic god of help and rescue, was renamed Rue Kennedy.

WINNIPEG — Lawrence Kelso, 55, calling Manitoba's compulsory hospital insurance "undemocratic," said he'd go to jail rather than pay a $27.50 fine for failing to pay $90.30, four years' premiums.

TAIPEI, Formosa — The government has impeached Kenneth T. C. Cheng, chief of its weather bureau, for dereliction of duty in predicting Typhoon Gloria would pass Formosa last September. The storm killed 239.

Brand New Petunias

Two new double petunias are announced for this year. Peppermint makes a dwarf 12-inch plant bearing light, fringed 2½-inch flowers in a light clear pink delicately veined in red. Strawberry Tart is a double bicolor, bright scarlet with a pure white blotch on the tip of each petal. The plants make a solid mound about 10 inches tall, very good for edging beds or for use in window boxes and planters. I imagine this one would make a most attractive houseplant too.

But Steelhead Got Away

'Magnificent' Timber Thrills Diefenbaker

By ALEC MERRIMAN
Colonist Outdoors Editor

Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker continued his whirlwind Vancouver Island vacation yesterday by driving over snow-blanketed logging roads to the San Juan Valley where he took part in a steelhead capture and saw B.C. loggers in action.

The former prime minister, thrilled at his first look at big B.C. timber, watched two loggers with a power saw take a mere 12 minutes to fell a Douglas fir that was 350 years old, 200 feet high and five feet in diameter.

"Magnificent, magnificent," he said. "I've never seen anything like it."

Shock, Too

He expressed interest in reforestation projects he saw and shock at waste in some old logging areas.

Mr. Diefenbaker drove along logging roads where his car was forced to pull over to dodge giant logging trucks with 12-foot bunkers and six-foot-high stakes, carrying 80 tons of logs in each load.

He saw the same trucks loaded by mechanical log loaders and slack line loaders, and a steel tower high-lead operation in the Hemmingway Creek operations.

Steel Mouths

Then B.C. Forest Products Port Renfrew logging division manager Les Way showed Mr. Diefenbaker his company's new $1,000,000 Port Renfrew industrial plant and the dryland sorting area, largest of its kind in North America, where huge log sorters open their giant steel mouths to sort and grade big timbers 20 tons at a time. This replaces water booming grounds.

A mobile A-frame style unloader lifted whole loads of logs, weighing up to 120 tons, off trucks in one lift, while Mr. Diefenbaker watched in astonishment.

All the Way

Fishing partner Frank Baker landed the 10-pound fighting steelhead, which gave an out-of-the-water fight all the way, but this only served to spur Mr. Diefenbaker to greater determination to catch a steelhead before he finishes his week's vacation.

It was the first steelhead he had seen and he liked what he saw. He said it was similar to an Atlantic salmon.

Today he will take a leisurely Gulf Islands cruise and a ris Creek with Frank Baker, little fishing on board the yacht Jason, winding up at Nanaimo. Friday he will again go steelheading, this time in some mid-island rivers.

Yukon Death Suspect Said Strangers Robbed, Shot Him

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP)—Three witnesses testified Wednesday they saw Karoly Marsi, 32, in the Yukon area where French university student Henri Meriguet, 22, disappeared in August, 1962.

They were giving evidence at the preliminary hearing of a charge of capital murder against Marsi, charged in the death of Meriguet, a student from France who disappeared en route home from a 1962 Alaska visit.

MARSH LAKE

Gerald Warren George, who worked as a mechanic at the Marsh Lake Lodge in 1962, said he met Marsi at Marsh Lake, which is at Mile 863 of

'Perjury Has Been Committed'

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Mission couple's divorce action was brought to an abrupt halt Wednesday by Mr. Justice H. J. Sullivan, who asked for an investigation for perjury.

The judge adjourned the case indefinitely and ordered a transcript of proceedings sent to the attorney-general for further action, saying: "Perjury certainly has been committed."

Josephine Morlex of Mission is suing Don Carlo Morlex and June Prevost for divorce on grounds of alleged misconduct. Morlex and Miss Prevost have denied the charge.

Monday he limited on sail. He said it was similar to an mon in Saanich Inlet.

Yesterday Mr. Diefenbaker fished the Mile 11 Pool of Harris Creek with Frank Baker, little fishing on board the yacht Jason, winding up at Nanaimo. Friday he will again go steelheading, this time in some mid-island rivers.

Yukon Death Suspect Said Strangers Robbed, Shot Him

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP)—Three witnesses testified Wednesday they saw Karoly Marsi, 32, in the Yukon area where French university student Henri Meriguet, 22, disappeared in August, 1962.

They were giving evidence at the preliminary hearing of a charge of capital murder against Marsi, charged in the death of Meriguet, a student from France who disappeared en route home from a 1962 Alaska visit.

SHOULDER WOUND

Gordon David Boyd, a bulldozer operator at a construction camp at Mile 50 of the Mayo road in 1962, said Marsi pulled into the camp early one morning in August and asked him to dress a shoulder wound.

Gerald Daniel Doyle of Edmonton said he met Marsi in Whitehorse Aug. 24 and drove with the accused to Dawson City, returning to Whitehorse Aug. 27. Mr. Doyle said Marsi had an automatic pistol in the glove compartment of his car.

CAR VIEWED

Court adjourned Wednesday afternoon to view a car in the Whitehorse police garage which was said to be the vehicle Marsi was driving at the time.

Crown counsel N. D. K. Wylie read a pathologist's report which said an autopsy on human remains found at an isolated Yukon gravel pit last May 27 indicated they were those of a healthy young man 20 to 25 years old and about five feet four inches tall.

The report said the autopsy did not reveal any evidence of illness, injury or animal teeth marks.

Constable R. D. Cwarr, who met Meriguet in August, 1962, when the youth visited Dawson City, Y.T., described him as short, slightly built, and about 20.

Creek-San Juan system, with a drop of about 450 feet from the road to the river, but the 67-year-old Conservative leader went up and down the slippery, rocky, log-crossed trail with the agility of a much younger man.

He admitted he would not like to do it every day. Even experienced steelheaders find the Mile 11 trail tough slugging.

First Time

It was the first time Mr. Diefenbaker, who is a keen fisherman, had used a spinning reel. His first casts were practice casts.

But after a dozen casts he was dropping his lures like an expert, letting his bait bob along the bottom to the lower parts of the pool. He is more used to bait casting out.

It was evident he was an experienced and enthusiastic fisherman. He was loathe to give up.

He had just stopped fishing and was preparing to move to another pool when Baker hit his steelie.

CBC Team

A CBC-TV photo team, preparing an hour-long documentary film about Mr. Diefenbaker, was along on the trip.

The Diefenbaker party was treated to a pheasant dinner at the home of Frank and Joyce Elliott and Mr. Diefenbaker joined in the 17th birthday celebration of Judy Elliott and her friend, Marjorie Skeena.

"Wonderful country... Just magnificent. Some people go abroad for their vacations, but I like to vacation in Canada," said Mr. Diefenbaker.

Being Studied

Brief Urges More Aid For University Students

A brief urging more government aid for university students is being studied by the department of education in Victoria.

The brief, presented on behalf of British Columbia's 17,000 university students, asks for interest-free loans and an extended money-for-marks program.

FINANCIAL AID

The government is already providing financial aid to students. The brief asks for more.

The brief, prepared by the Alma Mater Society of UBC, asks the province to assume the interest on student loans. This would amount to $40,000 a year.

The alternative suggested is establishment of low interest loans.

The government now provides half the fees of the top 1,000 students and a third of the fees for 2,500 second-class students. The brief advocates payment of all fees for top students and half of the fees of second-class students. Total cost of the requests is estimated at $350,000.

Slush Dust Gone

HALIFAX (UPI)—Some 150 charwomen ended their two-day-old strike and returned to work last night cleaning up three days' accumulation of dust and slush in the province's six Halifax government buildings, including historic Province House, seat of the legislature.

Their return meant clean offices for hundreds of government office workers and cabinet members today for the first time since Monday.

Road Death Inquests On Weekend

Inquest dates have been set in the deaths of two women who died in traffic mishaps—one Oct. 29 and the other last Tuesday.

An inquest will be held at Hayward's funeral chapel at 10 a.m. Saturday in the death of Mrs. Mary Ann Wain, 75, who died after a car struck her while she was walking on north Douglas Street near her house Tuesday night.

Driver of the car was Mrs. Marjorie Greenfield, 49, of 52 Moss.

An inquest will be held at 10 a.m. Friday at Sand's funeral chapel at Colwood Corners in the death of Mrs. May Preston, 1024 Halsam.

Mrs. Preston, 27-year-old mother of four, was in one of the cars that collided at the Trans-Canada Highway and Helmcken Road.

In the accident Tuesday night, Mrs. Greenfield told Search police she did not see Mrs. Wain until the woman suddenly appeared in front of the car.

Mrs. Wain is survived by two daughters, Mrs. James Gray of 323 Oliver and Mrs. Dorothy Thomson of Winnipeg, and a son, Ernest Wain of Winnipeg.

Public Service to Foster Cause of Church Unity

Greater Victoria clergy will hold a public service of witness in Metropolitan United Church on Sunday, Jan. 19, at 3 p.m.

Announcement of the service followed an hour of prayer and meditation yesterday that was attended by clergy from Roman Catholic Diocese of Victoria and Anglican, Baptist, Presbyterian, United and Lutheran churches and the Salvation Army, all members of the Greater Victoria Council of Churches.

The service was conducted by Dean Brian Whitlow.

NEW ATMOSPHERE

Rev. H. G. Walker, chairman of the Committee on Evangelism and Social Action of the council, said last night. "We have become aware of a new atmosphere of goodwill, charity and forgiveness that augurs well for the future and encourages us to go forward in faith, hope and confidence."

"We are now moved in the Victoria Council of Churches, including the Roman Catholics, to give a practical expression of our desire for unity, and to pray that the causes which give rise to division may now come to an end."

Civil Defence Courses Set

Courses in radiology, elementary rescue work and advanced rescue work, given by Esquimalt Emergency Measures Organization, will begin by the end of January.

The radiology course will likely be taught in Esquimalt Municipal Hall but as yet no location has been set for the rescue courses.

All courses are available to residents of View Royal, Metchoin and Colwood, as well as Esquimalt residents.

People wishing to register should phone the Emergency Measures Organization at 353-4104.

Courses will be held about once a week for about four months.

A fully-equipped civil defence truck will be available for the rescue courses and the most modern equipment, including radioactive sources, will be available for the radiology course.

He said for the last half-century there has been a growing desire for unity among the churches. In Canada this has already resulted in the United Church of Canada and the more recent merger of certain Lutheran Synods.

He pointed out already this year Pope Paul made his unprecedented trip from the Vatican to the Holy Land to have audiences with national church leaders including the Archbishop of Constantinople.

The service Jan. 19 is open to all.

Pilgrimage

Reviving Hope
Long Buried
Pope's Dream

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — Pope Paul yesterday likened his Holy Land pilgrimage to "a stroke of a pen which has created a new world."

The pilgrimage, he said, created awareness of "thoughts and divine designs buried but not extinguished by a centuries-old historic experience which now seems to open up to prophetic voices."

GENERAL GUIDANCE

The pontiff made the statement to a general audience in the Clementine and consistorial halls of Vatican palace, two days after returning from the pilgrimage.

Referring to an exuberant welcome home Monday by the citizens of Rome, the pontiff said:

"Truly our return was in itself a general audience to the people of Rome and all its authorities, an audience that never before occurred in similar forms and size."

IMPORTANT EVENT

"It constitutes in itself an event of exceptional importance. The Pope has never had a similar welcome and such acclaim from Roman citizens."

"St. Peter's successor had never experienced the mysterious and happy bond uniting him to Rome, his diocese, his city."

Hoax 'Punishment'
For Papal Journey

MILAN (UPI) — Franco Grassi, one of the men who stole Benito Mussolini's body in 1946, carried out a bomb hoax in Milan's Cathedral Wednesday "to punish the Catholic church" for Pope Paul's Holy Land trip.

Grassi, 45-year-old Fascist, surrendered to police after placing an anonymous phone call to a Milan newspaper.

The call said a powerful bomb had been placed in the Duomo, Milan's, hovering cathedral, which is visited by thousands of worshippers and tourists every week.

"It is going to blow up at 7 or 8 a.m.," the caller said.

Police awakened the cathedral sexton and searched the 15,000-square foot building without finding any explosives.

Special Court
To Try 300
In Algeria

ALGIERS (AP) — Special courts were convened in Oran Wednesday to try 300 persons arrested during a day of anti-government demonstrations in Algeria's second city.

Interior Minister Ahmed Medeghri flew to Oran for an investigation of the outbreaks Tuesday. Reports from Oran said the protests were against unemployment and the high cost of living.

Radio Algiers said members of the National Liberation Front, Algeria's only legal party, staged a counter-demonstration in Oran.

Later in the day, the caller told police they would find him at a downtown street corner. They went to the corner and found Grassi, who surrendered.

Police said Grassi told them he was against the Catholic church and disagreed with the pope's three-day pilgrimage.

Grassi gained notoriety 18 years ago as one of a group of fascists who stole the dictator's body from Musocco cemetery here.

SECRET KEPT

The body was found later concealed in a Milan monastery. The government buried it in a new place and kept the site secret until 1957.

The body then was turned over to Mussolini's widow, who had it reburied in the dictator's home village of Predappio.

Tranquille Chief:

Government Doing
'The Best It Can'

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Dr. A. J. Benne, medical superintendent of nearby Tranquille school for the retarded, says 33 of 66 beds available at the school will be filled early in February.

He was commenting on a statement by Ab Kemp, director of the B.C. Government Employees' Association, that Tranquille has 66 beds and room for another 100 if personnel could be found to staff them.

Dr. Benne said 20 new staff members have been hired but another 20 must be found by Tranquille's gravest problem is recruiting staff, he said, for all 66 beds can be filled.

Of the current debates on methods of improving B.C.'s welfare services he said:

"I would like to see things move a bit faster but as far as I'm concerned the government is doing the best it can."

CAPACITY GIVEN

Tranquille, which started operating as a retarded children's school in July, 1959, has 432 pupils. It has a capacity of between 550 and 600 persons.

The pupils are all over 18 and have been moved from Woodlands.

'Worst Case'

Dope Conspirators
Given 70 Years

TORONTO (CP) — Judge Robert Frenythe yesterday sentenced Charles Cipolla, 50, to 20 years imprisonment and four others to a total of 50 years for conspiracy to traffic in narcotics.

Oliver C. Hardy, 48, Jack Mezzum, 43, and James McGrath, 50, received 15 years each for their part in a $225,000 narcotics conspiracy.

Marion Burns, 33, was sentenced to five years.

MOST VICIOUS

"This is the worst narcotics case I have been concerned with," the judge said. "It is the most vicious crime."

Twelve persons were arrested and charged in raids which police claim broke up a province-wide ring.

Mrs. Gloria West, 38, was acquitted.

RCMP, described the ring which they scouted in July, as Canada's largest.

Party officers kept suspects under close scrutiny for about 4½ months. The investigation was climaxed with simultaneous raids in Toronto and Brampton in which police said more than $100,000 worth of heroin was seized.

In an operation code-named Mr. Big, 75 RCMP officers prowled the cities streets dressed as bums and addicts to trap suspects.

U.S. Base
Closing
In Spain

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Air Force will shut down one of its three bomber bases in Spain by July 1, it was announced Wednesday night.

B-47 medium jet bombers will be moved from the Zaragoza base to Maran and Teruel. Zaragoza will be placed on a standby basis.

The action is a result of the increasing force of U.S. intercontinental missiles and the gradual retirement of the old B-47 bombers.

'You Had Better Leave'

A youth who knocked at a house door and asked to use the phone wound up fracturing the householder's jaw on the front lawn, the householder told Saanich magistrate's court yesterday.

John Watson Redpath, 62, of 4450 Torquay, was testifying in the assault trial of David Bryan Hirst, 1545 Cedar Hill. After several witnesses were heard the trial was adjourned to Jan. 17.

SPEEDING CHARGE
A speeding charge against Hirst is also to be dealt with on that day.

Mr. Redpath testified he, his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Andrew Blyth, 4320 Torquay, were having dinner at his house Dec. 7 when a rap came to the door.

Hirst asked him to use the phone and Mr. Redpath said he could.

'BETTER LEAVE'
Later, after Hirst had had some difficulty finding the number in the phone book and had talked to Mrs. Redpath, Mr. Redpath told the youth, "I think, boy, you had better leave," Mr. Redpath testified.

The youth stood up but made no move to leave and Mr. Redpath, after a few seconds, opened the nearby front door of the house, gave the youth a shove on the chest and said, "Out, boy, out," Mr. Redpath testified.

BROKEN JAW
He testified the two wound up on the front lawn where Hirst hit Mr. Redpath's jaw with a "roundhouse swing," knocking him down and breaking his glasses and, as he found out from his doctor two days later, his jaw.

Mr. Redpath testified Mr. Blyth then came to his assistance. He also testified Hirst used obscene language.

Mrs. Redpath and Mr. Blyth also testified.

A man was remanded to Friday for plea in city court on a criminal negligence charge arising out of a traffic accident Nov. 11 in which a man was fatally injured.

Frank McClement, 67, of 1033 Pemberton, appeared briefly in court and heard the criminal negligence charge read.

It has been previously reported he was the driver of a car involved in an accident with a car driven by Mrs. Lois Jones, 31, of 1724 Lullie, at Fort and Bank Streets Nov. 11. Mrs. Jones' father-in-law, Ernest Jones, 52, of the Beverley Hotel, who was riding with her, was injured in the accident and died Nov. 21.

Water Line Tenders Disclosed

Pacific Irrigation was low bidder for the job of installing the 13,500-foot extension of the water system to supply 70 residents in the Dean Park area of North Saanich.

Pacific Irrigation, with $21,006, underbid four other firms.

OTHER FIGURES
Other bidders were A. J. Barr, $21,723; Farmer Construction, $22,804; Van's Contracting Co. Ltd., $24,314, and H. B. Contracting Ltd., $30,897.

The bids will be studied by the improvement district's engineers and it is hoped the contract can be awarded at the next meeting Tuesday.

Maverick River Adds to Island Mine Woe

New troubles for Cowichan Copper Co.'s mine at Jordan River came this week when river which has been surging through mine since Dec. 6 changed course, washing away rail staging at left, three small mine locomotives, machine shop, two roads and flat-bed truck (arrow).— (Agnes Flett photos)

Gorge gouged by flood is where Jordan River now bubbles out of mountainside. Engineers and miners were trying yesterday to get water back to river bed to prevent further damage. Higher up, bulldozers are digging diversion channel around original cave-in.

Eaton's Buys Block

By HARRY YOUNG Colonist Business Editor

The T. Eaton Co. announced Wednesday it purchased the Times office block on the corner of Fort and Broad last month.

The announcement, made by F. E. West, general manager of Eaton's in B.C., said the purchase had been made to provide extra space for its adjacent downtown store.

WILL CONTINUE
No definite plans for the reconstruction job have been made, and meantime the building will continue as an office block.

The five-storey building has 25,000 square feet of floor space and until 1951, was the publishing and editorial office of the Victoria Daily Times.

The Times building, as well as the newspaper, was bought from the Spencer family in 1949 by G. Max Bell, Calgary oilman and publisher of the Calgary Albertan.

FIRST TIME
A year earlier Eaton's purchased Spencer's department store to set themselves up in business in Victoria for the first time.

The Times moved to the new Victoria Press Ltd. building on Douglas Street in 1951 and since then the old Times Building has been rented out as office space. It has been on the market for some time.

Rendezvous At Sea On Friday

Sudbury II is cutting through the Bering Sea at her top speed of 15 knots en route to Adak and a Friday morning rendezvous with the Greek freighter Elli which lost her propeller in the North Pacific New Year's Eve.

The Elli was towed to Adak in the Aleutians by the U.S. Navy tug Matco. Sudbury II will tow her back to B.C. Capt. Harley Blagburn took the Sudbury farther north for better weather.

Visit Man Visited

Ghost 'Haunts' Unwilling Host

A ghost from the Hungry Thirties returned good-naturedly to haunt the new commissioner of the Victoria Visitors Bureau this week.

As commissioner Alan Maclean tells it, he was told a Mr. Brodie wanted to see him at the bureau's front desk. Mr. Maclean went out and the man introduced himself as Steve Brodie and asked whether Mr. Maclean remembered him.

"I was instrumental in bringing 200 guests to the Georgia Hotel in Vancouver when you were assistant manager there," Mr. Brodie said. "I'm afraid I don't remember you," said Mr. Maclean. "But I'm sure I was very grateful to you."

"I don't know that you were very grateful," said Mr. Brodie. He went on to recall that in 1937, when Mr. Maclean was assistant manager of the hotel, Mr. Brodie had been the leader of a group of 200 unemployed who had camped, uninvited, in the lobby of the hotel for a week as a protest against unemployment.

Mr. Brodie now is an active trade unionist in Victoria.

The defence department's announcement of the placing in reserve of four Esquimalt-based minesweepers and the fleet maintenance vessel HMCS Cape Breton came yesterday as a distinct shock to Victoria.

In all 14 warships will be taken out of naval service by the end of March, Associate Defence Minister Cardin said. Three destroyers will be scrapped, 11 other ships, including the mine-sweeping fleet, will be placed in reserve.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said "the announcement comes as a shock and complete surprise. It will take a while to assess the full implications."

Crew members of the ships will be absorbed by the navy and through retirement, Mr. Cardin said.

The Esquimalt-based minesweepers HMCS Fortune, James Bay, Miramichi and Cowichan each have 45 officers and men, a total of 180. The Cape Breton has a crew of 20 officers and 180 men.

"Let us hope," said Mayor

Wilson, "that this is only preliminary to a program of updating the other vessels of the fleet, such as the conversion of the destroyer-escorts now under experimentation."

Mr. Cardin said the changes announced yesterday and last month will fashion a better balance between manpower and commitments.

"Of particular benefit will be a pool of trained men," he said, "especially in the technical trades, to meet the existing requirements of the navy's modern destroyer escorts."

This was the second stage of Defence Minister Hellyer's plans to prune the navy's operating and maintenance costs in an effort to clear the way for new equipment procurement.

CLOSE DOWN
Last Dec. 5, Hellyer announced that five regular navy establishments would be closed down along with seven reserve naval divisions and two reserve air squadrons.

The defence department axe swung on:

Three tribal class destroyers, the Nootka, Cayuga and Micmac, commissioned following the war and now considered obsolete. The tribals were built at an estimated cost of $8,000,000 each.

10 SHIPS
The minesweeping squadrons on the east and west coasts, 10 ships in all, now considered ineffective against modern mines. They were commissioned between 1954-57 at a cost of $3,800,000 each.

The escort maintenance ship Cape Breton, built during the Second World War, for $2,400,000.

The Tribals are being scrapped entirely, while the other ships will be put in reserve in Halifax, N.S., and Esquimalt, B.C.

SLOW DOWN
The 1,300 crew members of the ships will be absorbed by the navy and through retirement and a slow-down of recruiting will trim the present naval strength.

This is expected to be the last major pruning job on the navy, as Mr. Hellyer attempts to trim the operating costs of all three services.

Mr. Hellyer, attempting to reverse spiralling costs of personnel and maintenance, has embarked on this program. Wednesday's cuts will mean an annual saving of $7,750,000 annually, expected to be diverted into new naval procurement programs.

Saanich Housewives

Garbage Issue Not Forgotten

By JACK FRY

Determined Saanich housewives are not going to let the seven men on Saanich council forget they want weekly garbage collection.

Less than 24 hours after council held its first meeting of 1964, Mrs. T. D. W. McCulloch, 2452 Camelot Road, a mother of four, had a campaign rolling.

She mailed a petition to council, with signatures of 14 of her neighbors, requesting weekly collection "instead of the 14 to 17-day collection which is presently operating."

APPEAL VOICED
She appealed for people throughout the municipality to send similar petitions to council.

Normally, housewives in Saanich do not complain about the twice-monthly service until the summer when the odor of over-ripe garbage becomes unbearable.

Council and the municipal health and welfare committee spent many hours talking about the problem in 1963, without a solution.

ANOTHER HOUSEWIFE

Shortly before the December municipal election, another housewife, Mrs. Marty Christlanson, 4213 Carey Road, turned in a petition with nearly 600 names of people favoring weekly garbage collection.

Council was still undecided then whether most of the people in the municipality wanted improvements in the service, which is contracted out to a private firm. Council referred the matter, along with Mrs. Christlanson's petition, to the 1964 health and welfare committee.

REPORT BOUGHT
Council also asked comptroller treasurer John Tribe to report to the committee on the feasibility of enclosing in the water bills a questionnaire asking if householders feel weekly service is desired.

Last Monday, Reeve Stanley Murphy named Coun. Harold Todd as chairman of the health and welfare committee, which probably will hold its first meeting some time this month.

OTHER MEMBERS
Couns. Joseph Casey and Douglas Crosby are the other members of this committee in 1964.

Mrs. McCulloch said yesterday, "Apparently there were not enough complaints made to council in 1963 to warrant their taking any action."

North Saanich Losing Water

North Saanich residents will be without water service Tuesday from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the district north of Henry Avenue and west of Fifth Street, including Fifth Street.

$2,000 Kicked It Off

Drive for Senior Citizens' Centre

A $2,000 cheque from an anonymous donor yesterday opened the campaign to raise $65,000 as the community's share of the cost of building a senior citizens' recreation centre in Centennial Square.

The cheque was presented to campaign chairman R. Frank Allen by Mayor R. B. Wilson at a luncheon to mark the kick-off of the public subscription drive.

CHURCH GROUPS
The mayor told about 70 representatives of church groups, the armed forces, service clubs and other community organizations that the donor wished no publicity.

Owen Karn, board chairman of the Silver Threads Service, which is organizing the campaign, said: "I know there are many more people in Victoria who will come forward with similar gifts in the near future."

Mr. Karn urged those present to seek support of their own organizations in publicizing the campaign and using every available means of raising funds for the project.

GIANT BINGO
He suggested a giant bingo with proceeds going to the campaign and a car raffle could be undertaken by service clubs.

A series of color slides were shown to indicate what is being done to provide recreation for elderly men and women at the Silver Threads Centre on Broughton Street.

Some 1,200 people now make regular use of this centre, whose facilities, Mr. Karn said, are totally inadequate to meet rapidly growing needs.

TOO MANY
"We now have to turn many elderly people away because the fire marshal's office tells us that we are trying to jam too many people into the space available. It's heartbreaking for those who cannot be accommodated," he said.

Mayor Wilson said a great deal of thought and planning had gone into the senior citizens' recreation centre. The $200,000 cost is to be made up of equal contributions from the city, provincial government and public subscriptions.

IDEAL ONE
"We have our $65,000 set aside," Mayor Wilson said. "We think the location is an ideal one. A park area of great beauty will be immediately adjacent to the centre. And we hope everything will be ready to start construction this summer."

Mr. Karn said campaign organizers hope to avoid the necessity for a door-to-door fund drive. But if one is necessary later this spring it will take combined resources of local service clubs to provide the necessary manpower.

Donations can be sent either to the Silver Threads Centre on Broughton or campaign offices at Canada Permanent Trust Co.

Counting Calories?

By SUSAN DELIGHT
Editor News Service

Calorie counting is a popular aftermath of the holidays. Most of the traditional holiday foods are not of the low-calorie variety, which accounts for post-holiday dieting.

Today's recipes were collected with calorie counters in mind. Eat and enjoy them.

SHRIMP ASPIC

One envelope (1 tsp.) unflavored gelatin; 1/4 cup cold water; 2 cups tomato juice; 1 tsp. instant minced onion; 1 tsp. salt; 1 tsp. lemon juice; 1/2 tsp. liquid sweetener; 1/4 tsp. pepper; 1 small bay leaf; 1 cup (5-oz. can) chopped, cooked shrimp; 1/2 cup finely chopped celery; 2 tbsps. finely chopped green pepper.

Soften gelatin in cold water. Combine in saucepan tomato juice, instant minced onion, salt, lemon juice, liquid sweetener, pepper and bay leaf. Bring to a boil; turn off heat. Remove bay leaf. Add softened gelatin; stir to dissolve. Chill until thick but not set. Stir in shrimp, celery and green pepper. Turn into a one-quart mold or individual molds. Chill until firm. Serve with creamy dressing. Serves six.

CREAMY DRESSING

One cup yogurt; 2 tbsps. prepared mustard; 1 tsp. lemon juice; 1/2 tsp. onion salt; 1/2 tsp. salt; 1/2 tsp. liquid sweetener. Combine yogurt, mustard,

NOTE

Florence Nightingale Chapter, IODE, will meet Monday, Jan. 13, at 1:45 p.m. at the home of Mrs. G. C. Henderson, Bickerton Court, 250 Douglas Street. Nominations will be held.

Low-calorie shrimp aspic is colorful, tasty and a boon to the dieter. Good-sized serving only 62 calories.

lemon juice, onion salt, salt and liquid sweetener. Mix well. Makes one cup. One tablespoon represents eight calories.

An elegant dessert, creme de menthe parfait contains 54 calories a serving.

CREME DE MENTHE PARFAIT

Two envelopes unflavored gelatin, 1/4 cup cold water, 1 1/2 cups boiling water, 1 1/2 cups lime juice, 3 tbsps. liquid sweetener, 3 tbsps. green creme de menthe, 1/4 cup nonfat dry milk, 1/4 cup ice water 1 tsp. creme de cacao.

Soften gelatin in cold water; add boiling water, stirring to dissolve. Add lime juice, liquid sweetener and two teaspoons of the creme de menthe. Chill until firm; then force gelatin through sieve. Combine dry milk and ice water; beat on high speed of mixer until mixture holds its shape. Blend in remaining one teaspoon creme de menthe and the creme de cacao. To serve, alternate layers of lime gelatin and whipped topping in six parfait glasses. Each serving of the salad which follows contains 57 calories.

APPLESAUCE SAVARIAN SALAD

Two envelopes (or tbsps.) unflavored gelatin, 2 cups apple juice, 3/4 tsp. liquid sweetener, 1/4 cup lime juice, 1/2 cup unsweetened applesauce, 1/4 cup nonfat dry milk, 1/4 cup ice water, 1 cup thin apple slices.

Soften gelatin in one-half cup of the apple juice; heat remaining juice; add to softened gelatin; stirring to dissolve. Add sweetener and lime juice; refrigerate until mixture begins to thicken. Beat with rotary beater until frothy. Fold in applesauce. Combine dry milk and ice water in bowl; beat on high speed of mixer until peaks form; fold into gelatin mixture. Arrange apple slices on bottom of a six-cup mold; pour gelatin over fruit; chill until set. Makes 10 servings.

Egg Dishes Supply Something Different

By BASH, FITZGIBBON

Now that the heavy holiday meals and leftovers are behind us it is time to look to a lighter diet. It is also the time for the imaginative cook to come up with something different.

The two egg dishes for today supply this demand for a new taste.

EGGS A LA TRIPE

Of course, there is no tripe in this dish but it looks the dish resembles tripe in cream sauce.

Three medium onions, sliced; 3 tablespoons butter, 2 1/2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, freshly ground black pepper to taste, 2 cups milk (may be part cream), 1/2 cup shredded Gruyere cheese, 6 hard-cooked eggs, sliced.

In a heavy saucepan, saute the onions in the butter until tender but not brown. Add the flour, salt and pepper and blend well. Gradually add the milk and cook, stirring, until thickened.

Add the cheese, stir until melted and add the eggs. Reheat without boiling and serve on rice or toast. Or turn the mixture into a shallow six-cup casserole, dot with additional butter and broil until lightly browned.

Another easy but appealing dish is curried eggs and here is a recipe for Madras egg curry:

MADRAS EGG CURRY

One small onion, chopped; 1 clove garlic, minced, 1/4 cup butter, 1 1/2 tablespoons curry powder, 2 teaspoons tomato paste, water, salt, lemon juice, 6 hard-cooked eggs, cut in half lengthwise.

Saute the onion and garlic in the butter two or three minutes. Add the curry powder, tomato paste and about one cup of water, or enough to make a thin sauce. Simmer about ten minutes and add salt and lemon juice to taste.

Add the eggs, reheat and serve with rice and accompaniments such as chopped peanuts, raisins, grated orange rind, chopped parsley, chopped onion, chutney and coconut.

Either of these recipes make excellent luncheon or supper dishes and offered with a good tossed green salad will make a

Tempting Tidbits

Bite-size chunks of seafood speared on cocktail picks with one or two other tasty morsels make delicious, quick appetizers. For serving, a large grapefruit, a baby Gouda cheese, or a big red apple makes an attractive "porcupine." The following are some good combinations.

Smoked Oyster Savories: Cut canned, smoked oysters into bite-size pieces. Slice a lemon thinly, leaving rind on slices. Cut each slice into small wedges. Place a tiny lemon wedge on each piece of oyster and skewer together with a pick.

Herring on Picks: Cut marinated herring into bite-size squares. Spear a herring square and a small pickled onion on each pick.

Smoked Salmon Relishes: Cut thinly sliced smoked salmon (lox) into strips about two inches long and one inch wide. Roll up and skewer each roll on a pick with a bit of dill pickle.

Shrimp Kabobettes: Skewer together a cooked or canned shrimp and a small stuffed olive. The tiny, fresh-cooked, British Columbia shrimp are attractive alternated on picks with thin segments of black or green olive. For each kabobette alternate three small shrimp and two or three olive segments.

Pickled Onions: Spear a rolled anchovy and a bit of sweet pickle on each pick.

Ancient Chinese Knew Sauerkraut Was Good

Most people regard sauerkraut as the national dish of Germany and associate it immediately with German sausage and healthy, rosy faced Bavarian villagers. Yet, in reality, even the name "sauerkraut" is a misnomer.

History has lost track of what the Chinese people called this cabbage delicacy, but they, more than anyone else, deserve the right to call "sauerkraut" their own. It was known and used in China at least three centuries before the time of Christianity.

Several centuries later it showed up in eastern Europe when the war-like Tartars began pillaging the countries of the eastern Mediterranean. Now it shows up in the national cuisine of many nations.

The reason is obvious. Cabbage was part of the stable diet of the peasant and, salt, always available for curing meat and indeed essential to food preservation, was in plentiful supply. Because it had a pleasant stimulating flavor and was good for the person who ate it, sauerkraut, as we know it today, survived the trial of history.

Many ancient culinary quirks have been justified by scientific research in the 20th century. Our taste for sauerkraut, too, has been endorsed by leading scientists, including Louis Pasteur, the father of pasteurization. From a health standpoint, he placed it first of all vegetables.

Sauerkraut has all the beneficial properties of cabbage in a more easily-digested form. Many people who shy away from fresh cabbage can enjoy sauerkraut. The process which cabbage undergoes to become sauerkraut also produces lactic acid, the same type of lactic acid which is found in buttermilk, yogurt and sour milk, all of which are well-known for their health-giving properties. So sauerkraut actually increases appetite and aids digestion, while adding cabbage's important nutrients to your diet in very delicious form.

Sauerkraut as made today in modern kitchens is far superior to the sauerkraut on which Pasteur formed his opinion. The choicest cabbages are finely shredded with absolute uniformity by specially constructed machines. This assures even and uniform fermentation.

One of the first ways to increase your family's interest in sauerkraut dishes is to serve it in new ways. Here's what you can do to add new taste to an ancient pleasure.

BAKED SAUERKRAUT

One tin sauerkraut, 3 slices bacon, diced, 1/2 cup tomato juice, 1/4 cup buttered cracker crumbs.

Mix sauerkraut with bacon fried until crisp. Place in buttered baking dish. Add tomato and top with crumbs. Bake 25 to 30 minutes in moderate oven, 375 degrees F.

SAUERKRAUT AND BEET SALAD

Cut six cold, cooked beets into fine slices or small cubes and mix with them three cups of sauerkraut. Put large onion through coarse knife of food chopper and sprinkle over the top of salad. Serve with either French dressing or mayonnaise.

SPARKLES AND SAUERKRAUT

Take heavy-bottomed saucepan with tightly fitting cover. Place in the bottom with the skin side up some sugar cured ham rinds; then spread upon them some sliced onions. Place on this a layer of sauerkraut, then a layer of spareribs, then kraut, and continue until the saucepan is nearly filled. Add no water, but fasten lid on firmly to avoid escape of steam, thereby cooking the food in its own moisture. Cook for two and one-half hours.

BAKED SAUERKRAUT WITH APPLE

Three cups sauerkraut, 4 tablespoons brown sugar, 2 apples.

In buttered baking dish, place layer of sauerkraut, then layer of sliced, unpeeled apples and sprinkle with two tablespoons brown sugar; add another layer of sauerkraut, apple and sugar. Cover and bake in moderate oven till apples are tender. Serve hot.

SAUERKRAUT TOMATO RABBIT

Two tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 cups tomato soup, 1/2 teaspoon paprika 1 cup grated cheese, 1 cup sauerkraut.

Melt butter, add flour, and when brown, add tomato soup. Stir until mixture boils, and seasonings. Place over hot water, beat in grated cheese and continue beating until cheese is thoroughly melted. Stir in sauerkraut, and when thoroughly heated pour over triangles of hot toast. Serves four.

Everyone has heard of the hat trick but this one is for real. This model can do double duty anytime from morning until night. It also travels well and is easy to pack. Called a suiter, designer Mr. John of New York named it "Belini." Of black and Ducale white over-plaid this model made its appearance at the spring millinery fashion show at the Americana Hotel in New York. In the first picture to the left, model Joy Huyler wears the slightly pouf, tall pillbox and in the next two she demonstrates how easily the wide, soft brim fits into place . . . and presto an attractive model just right for smart new spring fashions. PERSONAL MENTION

The three-month-old son of Lieut. Cmdr. and Mrs. J. K. Kennedy received the names David Watson Cubsen at a christening service held recently in HMCS Margaree. Rev. H. Mortimer officiated and godparents are Mrs. B. Cook of Quenel, standing proxy for Mrs. B. Vickery of Prince George, Mr. F. Boyd, Vancouver, and Lieut. Cmdr. E. Francis.

The baby wore an heirloom, hand-embroidered christening gown, used by members of his father's family for over 100 years. The baby's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. James I. Watson and Mrs. W. R. Kennedy, all of Victoria.

Others present were Lieut. Cmdr. and Mrs. J. Creach, Mrs. E. Francis, Mr. and Mrs. H. Buckle, Miss Gail Buckle, Mr. and Mrs. E. Young, Mr. and Mrs. D. Francis, Mr. and Mrs. L. Bayley, Mrs. M. White and Mrs. F. Boyd.

Cmdr. Kennedy who was here with his family for the holiday season has now returned to HMCS Shearwater at Halifax. Mrs. Kennedy and David are staying until the end of January with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James I. Watson, 1280 Palmer Road.

Supper Party

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh A. Creighton, Prospect Lake, will entertain at a supper party Saturday evening for members of the Young Progressive Conservative Association.

Surprise Shower

A surprise miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs. C. Ross, 3165 Donald Street in honor of January bride-elect Miss Marilyn Watt. A pink and silver corsage was given to the honor guest while her mother, Mrs. E. Watt, and grandmother, Mrs. M. Perullet, were also given corsages. A palm-leaf decorated green laundry basket held the many gifts. Those present were Mrs. S. Mitchell, Mrs. Meron Simpson, Mrs. M. Lane, Mrs. R. Veness, Mrs. H. Simpson, Mrs. H. Boutillier, Mrs. F. Brazier, Mrs. R. Brazier, Mrs. A. Brazier, Mrs. W. Jones, Mrs. N. Clare, Mrs. R. Wooten, Mrs. A. Christopher, Mrs. J. Beaman, and the Misses Bonnie Casals, Betty Moody, Sherry Ross, Donna Ross, Lynne Simpson and Virginia Lane.

Birthday Party

FULFORD—Janet Lacy, daughter of Captain and Mrs. Edward Lacy, celebrated her sixth birthday recently with a party for several of her young friends.

Games, including musical chairs, birthday tea and a decorated cake were highlights of the day. Guests were Anna Mollet, Bruce and Elaine Patterson, Alec and Debbie McManus, Ian, Jeffrey and Christine Lacy.

Wedding Jan. 25

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Lomas, Sr., announce the forthcoming marriage of their eldest daughter Edith Marion and Mr. Morris Burton Elliott, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. B. Elliott, Paddockwood, Sask. The wedding will take place Jan. 25 at 8 p.m. in Metropolitan United Church with Rev. Dr. John H. Garden officiating.

TV Show

Fabulous World Of Riches

Baroness Henry Thyssen-Bornemisza, the former London fashion model Fiona Campbell-Walter, who has just been named one of the ten best dressed women in the world, is the subject of an hour-long interview and profile on The Hourglass on the CTV Television Network next Sunday at 10 to 11 p.m.

The program, titled The Model Millionaire, was shot in St. Moritz and Lugano. It shows Baroness Thyssen talking to interviewer Alan Whicker in a variety of situations in the fabulous world of unlimited riches in which she lives.

She is seen in a speed boat on the lake, walking through the town, having her hair dressed, in her private plane, and so on. The photography of Peter Hall is of outstanding quality and the Baroness herself is a very attractive personality as well as a remarkably beautiful woman.

Baroness Thyssen was listed among the 10 best-dressed women in the annual international poll of fashion experts.

Grand Factor To Visit Here

Mrs. R. Yates, grand factor, and Mrs. R. Smith, grand secretary, both of Langley, will be honor guests when the Native Daughters of British Columbia, Post No. 2, hold a banquet at 8:15 p.m. in the Crest Motel, Thursday. Affairs will precede the factor's official visit to the post, to follow at 9 p.m. in the Orange Hall, Courtney Street.

Baby Village

ULLENWOOD, England (CP) — A village is to be built in this Gloucestershire area to help 125 handicapped children and their families. Cost of the village will be about $38,000.

and editors announced by the Associated Press.

"A delicious bit of escapism for all those viewers biting their nails over the rise in taxes or how to turn their worn carpets back to front," said columnist Mary Creelan in The Guardian.

"The Baroness herself presented her own picture with a poise which could win nothing but admiration."

"A glossy expedition in the fairytale land of multi-millions where champagne rains less than bath water," The Daily Sketch reported. "Whichever fitted among the riches and the international set putting together a study of great wealth that was a superb documentary of charm."

The Daily Telegraph stated: "An interview which had something of the quality of an expensive film so poised and well groomed was the subject of it. We all wonder what it is like to be master or mistress of unlimited riches and Mr. Whicker very properly introduced the program in fairy tale language."

The Sunday Times complimented the Baroness for emerging from the interview as "a calm, self-possessed woman with candour, dignity and a splendid nerve."

Whicker was described by The Daily Herald as "deadpan" and television's "subtlest commentator of the absurd." Whicker, it said, "strewed his film interview (with the Baroness) with brilliant quotes like a master jeweller."

The film, a special BBC production, was thus lavishly praised when it was shown on television in Great Britain.

Longer Jacket

Chanel Suit Has Competition

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dame fashion is drumming the chanel-shaped suit from its monopoly position in fashion's ranks.

That suit, with its over-blouse and little boxy jacket—a combo perfect for concealing spare tires, continued in spring silhouettes unveiled by the nation's garment makers in New York, but it was just one of dozens of suit shapes suggested for spring.

Tremendous variety marked suit silhouettes shown to the nation's fashion press corps during the fourth day of a week's concentrated showings from collections of pace-setting designers.

Shaped and even padded shoulders, lengthened jackets—some down to hip level—nipped waists, belted and man-tailored details combined to give midday the biggest choice of suit looks in many a fashion season.

Many skirts, cut on the bias, were the big circle type that swirled when the wearer walked. Others were gathered at the front, making for ease walking or sitting.

Man-tailored touches included broad lapels, trouser pockets in skirts, flaps on jacket pockets and in the selection of fabrics—including men's wear chalk and pin stripes, worsteds and flannels.

Highlights of collections during the fourth day of the week-long "press week" for the nation's fashion scribes:

Larry Alish — showed a series of suit and dress shapes with skirts which swung when the wearer walked or hung flat when the wearer stood still. Many skirts had flat-pleated, three to four-inch pleating or paneling all around. His suit jackets buttoned in closely at the waist, fitted gently over hips.

Mamah Troy — endorsed dresses with their own matching or contrasting top-coats. Notable: A white linen dropped waistline dress with its own overcoat of brown linen with gold button closing.

Celli Chapman — advanced the black crape dress with the adjustable plunging neckline. The neckline was slashed to the waist and laced, but not together, all the way up. Jeweled jenkins—a meshwork of crystals or jet—went over the low white chiffon gowns for evening.

Lola Kates — promoted beguilingly ruffled capelets, sophisticated cape-clothes edged with mink, and long, romantic silk evening capes to cover dipping necklines of dresses, short and long. His suits had close elbow capes with matching tweed skirts and crepe or print overblouses.

Arthur Jallow — bid for attention with buccanear suits by designer David Kidd. The suit: A cape ensemble—wrist-length cape accompanied by its own skirt, blouse, waistkit and wide calf belt. Often, a print blouse and cape lining completed the picture. A fourth touch: The capekin vest.

Ben Belg — suggested these compositions for a well-put-together look: a curve-away ho-lure over princess dress in maple sugar worsted; wrap-weave silk dress-with-jacket in a streaked pattern; the hand-but jaunty capelet over a sleeveless dress.

Fashions To Make Boys Look

NEW YORK — Spring fashions are not supposed to make girls look like little boys. They are supposed to make little boys look.

Plunging necklines and little waistlines above the point of full skirts are two of the promises as femininity returns to fashion.

MR. AND MRS. RAY LANTZ

Couple Honored On Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Lantz of 1567 Gladstone Avenue were honored recently on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary at a family dinner party held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Trev Evans.

The bride's table, which seated 26 relatives of the honored couple, was centred with an attractive anniversary cake made by Mrs. Lantz's sister, Mrs. Elton Griffin, and decorated by Mrs. Evans, niece of the guests of honor.

Congratulatory telegrams, flowers, gifts and cards were received from friends and relations in Victoria and the United States.

Mr. and Mrs. Lantz were married Christmas Day, 1913, at Didsbury, Alta., where they lived until 1948 at which time they moved to Victoria. Mr. Lantz was born in Riverside, Iowa, moving to the Didsbury district with his parents in 1906. Mrs. Lantz, who was born in Cambridge, England, moved to the same town in Alberta in 1912.

Among those attending the family dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Elton Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Parsons and son, Michael, Jr., the Misses Brenda, Lynda and Mary-Ann Evans, and George Evans, all of Victoria; Mr. and Mrs. George Parsons and daughter, Sandra; Mrs. J. H. McClelland with Brian and Bonnie Jean, Mrs. M. D. Ford and sons Douglas and Garth, all of Calgary; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Schnee and children, Susan and Cory, Cut Bank, Mont.

AMY

By Harry Mace

"Now that I'm all dressed, I'm too tired to go out and play!"

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is extremely imaginative and an avid do-it-yourself fan. He built his own outboard motor, and when he broke his arm skiing last year he even set it himself. The doctor congratulated him on a remarkably fine job.

We are expecting our first child in four months. I've read it is far better to have a baby at home than in a hospital, and that the infant who is born at home gets love and attention from his first moments of life, which is terribly important.

I have telephoned every obstetrician in this town and no one will deliver my baby at home. My husband has been reading books on delivering babies and he says he knows he can do it. We want to know what special obstetrical equipment we may need for a home birth. And... can it be obtained at a drug store?—J.I.

Dear J.I.: Babies are born at home, in taxis, on buses and heaven knows where every day, but usually it's because the mother can't get to the hospital soon enough.

No woman in her right mind would allow her husband to deliver her child as a Do-It-Yourself Project.

You just might need a blood transfusion, an oxygen tank or an incubator and you can't buy these things in the drug store.

Dear Ann Landers: My mother and dad are having a terrible argument. We just moved into this nice house last May. Mom has worked like a slave fixing it up. She hung all the wallpaper, did the painting and even put down a tile floor. Now dad wants to sell the house. He says he knows he can make a nice profit.

This is the third house mom has fixed up in five years and she is furious. In the two previous cases dad sold our houses without even asking her. He has our "next house" all picked out. It is only two blocks from here so he insists the move will be a cinch. The house he has picked out is an old barn but he says mom can do wonders with it, as she has with all the others. Mom is dead tired and she asked me to write for advice.

—ON HER HIDE.

Dear On: Married people should own their home jointly, which would make it impossible for one party to sell it without the consent of the other.

Some women love to fix up old homes and sell them, but since your mother considers it a hardship she should not be made to do it.

P.S. And tell your dad that moving to a home two blocks away is just as much work as moving to Hong Kong.

MONTREAL, January 9th — REDUCED... SACRIFICE... BARGAIN... What woman can resist the appeal of words like these? If there is something special you have your eye on but it's inconvenient to pay ready cash — why not finance it under the BANK OF MONTREAL Family Finance Plan? To borrow under this low-cost, life-insured plan, all you need is the ability to repay — and payments can be spread over two, or even three, years. Whether it's a new fur coat or something else equally appealing, chances are you can get it with a B of M Family Finance Plan loan. Why not drop into your neighborhood branch of "My Bank" soon?

SAY GOOD-BYE FOREVER to disappointing, soggy dumplings! Here, on the new package of MONARCH TEA-BISK is a tried 'n' true recipe for making perfect dumplings. Of course, Tea-Bisk guarantees perfection... as it does with so many of your family's favourites... pie toppings, tea biscuits, puddings and pancakes. You see, Monarch Tea-Bisk is an all-purpose mix that makes light work of baking. Do buy Tea-Bisk today and try the quick and easy recipes on the package. (And, notice, when you buy it, that the Tea-Bisk package has a new, easy-flow, pouring spout for your added convenience!)

DISCOVER A FRESH NEW WAY to brighten the first meal of the day. I make Post Grape-Nuts a must for breakfast. It's different from other cereals — different in taste — different in texture. Not flaked, pulled or sugared. GRAPE-NUTS is a wheat cereal — concentrated — with food energy in every spoonful. It's crunchy, has a nut-sweet flavour — like no other cereal. It brings a welcome change to the breakfast menu. You'll enjoy it. GRAPE-NUTS is a wheat cereal — concentrated — with food energy in every spoonful. TALK ABOUT SOMETHING GOOD TO EAT! Tasted LIBBY'S SAUERKRAUT? Don't wait any longer to enjoy this wonderful taste treat. The crisp, mellow flavour of Libby's Sauerkraut is always just right... hot or cold! What's more, it's one of the most healthful and economical vegetables you can serve. Serve it cold in salads or sandwiches, or hot with meat. But be sure not to overcook it... just warm it through... this way you'll preserve the beneficial goodness of its lactic acid content. Do treat your family to Libby's Sauerkraut — soon. It's a real "bargain" in good health and flavour.

Pearls Bridal Jewels

Baskets of pink and white chrysanthemums decorated St. Luke's Anglican Church for the recent marriage of Audrey May Thornton and Henry Robert Cameron. Archdeacon C. E. F. Wolff officiated.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Melville E. Thornton, 1465 Derby Road, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Cameron, 2975 Orilla Street.

EMPIRE LINE

The bride wore a short-length Empire line gown of white delustered satin, styled with portrait neckline lily point sleeves and pearl and bead trimming at front waist and on the short detachable chapel train. A tulle of orange blossoms held her short, filmy illusion net veil and she carried red roses and feathered white chrysanthemums. "Something old" was a necklace of pearls which had belonged to her grandmother. Mr. Thornton gave his daughter in marriage.

ROSE AND BLUE

Maid of honor, Miss Carol Emery, wore a gown of deep rose sheer with matching headpiece and shoes. A niece of the bride, Miss Wanda Andrew, as bridesmaid, wore a blue taffeta dress with over skirt and bodice of embroidered nylon and matching rose headpiece. Both carried flowers in tone and wore silver bracelets, gifts of the bride.

K. B. Chase was best man for his brother-in-law and the ushers were William Thornton and Danny Cameron, brothers of the principals. All three wore black Alaska diamond cuff link sets, gifts of the groom.

SILVER BASKETS

Reception was held in the Cavalier Room at the Colony Motel where a three-tier wedding cake and silver baskets of white and pink flowers and pink candles, centred the bride's table. Ronald Andrew of Port Alberni proposed the toast to his niece.

Following a honeymoon in Portland, Ore., newlyweds are now making their home at 3131 Orilla Street.

ROSE CORSAGE

For travelling the bride wore a white wool suit, black ostrich plume hat, black accessories and red rose corsage.

Machinery

Castro Wants More

LONDON (UPI)—Cuban Premier Fidel Castro was reported Wednesday to have sent a new trade mission to Europe to try to buy heavy machinery as controversy continued over deal for sale of $11,000,000 worth of British buses to Cuba.

Britain, concerned over angry American reaction, said it was powerless to halt the sale of the 400 buses because the arrangement was a private deal. A spokesman for the British Leyland Motor Corp. said delivery of the buses would begin in April.

Reports from Havana said the new trade mission was going first to Prague and then planned stops in London, Paris and Vienna.

American protests over the bus deal raised fears in London yesterday that the transaction may mar talks scheduled for next month in Washington between President Johnson and Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home.

Road Idea

U.S. Aid In B.C.?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senator Mike Mansfield called Wednesday for the U.S. and Canada to share the cost of building the Alaska Highway. The senate majority leader introduced a bill to authorize appropriation of money if Canada agrees to pay at least half the cost.

He said the U.S. should join Canada in the work even though the road is entirely on Canadian soil. The funds would be used for the Canadian portion from Dawson Creek to Fairbanks.

The legislation would require that Canada agree not to charge tolls or to apply taxes against U.S. users which are not applied equally to Canadians.

Snow Isolates 50 Villages

SALONICA, Greece (AP)—More than 50 villages were isolated Wednesday by heavy snowstorms in northern Greece. Snowdrifts eight feet high were reported blocking some roadways and Greek Royal Air Force planes were ordered to drop medical supplies and food for livestock.

Quietly Helped Jews, Says Paul

Pius Did All He Could

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Osservatore Romano said Wednesday the late Pope Pius XII did all he could, sometimes acting secretly and "with true heroism," to aid Jewish victims of Nazi persecution during the Second World War.

The Vatican City newspaper was commenting on Pope Paul VI's vigorous defence of Pius XII Sunday

during his pilgrimage to the Holy Land.

Osservatore Romano said Pope Paul's comments to Israeli President Zalman Shazar concerned "a well-known theatrical work." He was obviously referring to German author Rolf Hochhuth's play, The Representative, which criticizes Pius' role during the Nazi persecution of the Jews.

"It is false that the tragedy of the Jews and of so many creatures judged at the time as of inferior descent was not understood or shared," said Osservatore. "The opposite is true: the pope and the church did what they could with an assiduous effort, often hidden and hence ignored by many, a daily effort, sometimes carried out with true heroism."

"Nor did they fear also to go beyond the limits that a certain common sense insisted on assigning to their action in history. Nothing that touches man can leave the church and the visible head that leads it over the centuries indifferent."

"Everyone, even those who do not share the Christian faith, must look at the church with confidence and hope. She has not betrayed and she will not betray."

Coffin

HANGING PROBE ORDERED

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec government Wednesday ordered a royal commission investigation into the trial and execution of Wilbert Coffin, hanged in 1956 for the murder of three American hunters.

The decision, taken at a cabinet meeting, was announced by Attorney-General Rene Hamel. It followed revival of a controversy on the question whether a miscarriage of justice occurred in the Coffin case. Publication of a book late last year claiming that Coffin, a Gaspe prospector, was innocent, provoked the issue.

ONE MEMBER

The commission will have one member — Mr. Justice Roger Brossard of Montreal Superior Court.

The order — in a council setting up the commission specifically orders an investigation into "the credibility of statements" made by Francis Thompson to the police in Montreal, Feb. 10, 1958.

LATER RETRACTED

Thompson told police he committed the murders, but later retracted the statement.

The commission was ordered to inquire into "the actions of officers and police agents and all other persons having participated, directly or indirectly, in the preparation and presentation of the evidence used in all procedures which led to the execution of Wilbert Coffin, Feb. 10, 1956 . . ."

INNOCENT

Appointment of the royal commission follows publication in Montreal of a book by Jacques Hebert titled L'Accusé des Assassins de Coffin, (The Accused Coffin's Assassins) which claimed Coffin was innocent of the 1953 death of three American hunters from Hollisburg, Pa. Technically, Coffin was convicted of the death of one of the hunters.

Premier Lesage, who was standing beside Mr. Hamel when the announcement was made, said Mr. Hebert would have a chance to call witnesses to present his side of the case.

Showdown Demanded

TORONTO (UPI) — Reid Scott, New Democratic member of parliament for the Toronto riding of Scarborough, said last night he will ask Justice Minister Lionel Chevrier to table in the Commons all correspondence between Ottawa and Quebec City in the Coffin affair.

Eastern Quake Biggest Since '52

OTTAWA (CP)—The largest earthquake in Eastern Canada since 1952 was recorded early Wednesday by the seismology division of the Dominion Observatory.

'Messiah' Purges Police Force

ACCRA (UPI)—Ghana president Kwame Nkrumah Wednesday ordered the arrest of this African nation's former opposition leader and purged top police ranks in fierce retribution for last Thursday's abortive attempt on his life.

A government announcement said detention orders were issued against former opposition leader Dr. J. B. Danquah, deputy police commissioner, S. D. Amanin and assistant police commissioner M. K. Awuku.

Danquah, Amanin, and Awuku were being detained under the preventive detention order which a person can be held without trial for five years.

Nkrumah, 54, and dubbed "the messiah" by his followers, had been expected to carry out the purge ever since his dramatic escape from the third attempt on his life in 1946 months.

FIVE SHOTS

In the shooting attack last Thursday, five shots were fired at Nkrumah as he walked to his car from his heavily-guarded office at Flagstaff House in Accra.

Only last month Nkrumah showed his strong hand when a court acquitted former foreign minister A. K. Aducci and information minister Tawiah Adamah and former executive secretary of the convention people's party H. Coffie Crabbe on charges of treason which stemmed from a bomb attack on Nkrumah in August. Nkrumah, 54, fired 69-year-old Ghana Chief Justice Sir Arku Korsah the day after the acquittals.

Nkrumah Took Off When Bullets Flew

ACCRA (AP)—President Nkrumah may not have been the main target for five bullets fired in his direction last week.

A widely circulated unofficial report in Accra, the Ghanaian capital, tells of a personal feud between Nkrumah's bodyguard, who was killed in the gunplay, and a young policeman held as the attempted assassin of the president.

Salifu Degari, 30, the slain security guard, is described as a harsh disciplinarian who had quarrelled with the accused slayer. Police Constable Seth Nicholas Kwame Ametewee, who was assigned guard duty near the president's office.

WITHIN HOURS

While it may seem unlikely that Ametewee would use a rifle to settle a personal grudge in the presence of Nkrumah, the report was widely circulated in Accra within hours after the shooting.

Radio Ghana and Accra's three daily newspapers are government-controlled and print nothing except what the government wants reported. Under these conditions, a highly developed word of mouth communications system has sprung up.

Bad Seed

MOSCOW (Reuters)—A Soviet newspaper has disclosed "alarming" shortages of seed for spring sowing and criticized inadequate preparations for the use of fertilizers.

When a representative sampling of various seed was inspected in the Russian federation more than 70 per cent was found to be unsatisfactory.

Raab

He Led Austria Back to Liberty

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Former chancellor Julius Raab died Wednesday night, remembered by his countrymen as the man who led Austria back to independence after the Nazi and post-war occupation.

Long a sufferer from diabetes and a liver ailment, the 72-year-old Raab was stricken at Baden Monday, and lapsed into unconsciousness as he was being brought to Vienna's Floridsdorf Hospital.

Wednesday morning Raab fell into a deep coma, received the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church, and died, his wife, Hermine, at his side.

Dr. Ferdinand Nagl, Raab's physician, said a blood clot had formed in the lung, causing heart failure.

Shortly before Raab's death, Pope Paul sent a cable saying: "The Holy Father sends apostolic blessings from all his heart to the sick former chancellor and prays to God to give him a full measure of mercy, divine consolation and help."

Austrian leaders of both parties praised Raab, a Conservative, for his part in getting the Austrian independence treaty of 1955.

CAREER CLIMAX

President Adolf Schaerf, a Socialist, said Raab's political career reached a climax "when the state treaty and the withdrawal of foreign troops from Austria came about."

Chancellor Alfons Gorbach, a Conservative, said Raab's "devotion to work for obtaining the state treaty will never be forgotten."

Both Schaerf and Gorbach praised Raab's efforts to achieve a collaboration between the Conservatives and the Socialists.

Parliament Archaic Says Grit

FORT ST. JOHN, B.C. (CP)—Agricultural Minister Harry Hays, said Wednesday that Canada's system of parliament is antiquated.

Mr. Hays said he gets quite frustrated at times in parliament because there is so much to be done and everything takes so long. He said the whole system should be overhauled.

The Minister said Canadian-American trade relations have been generally deteriorating in recent years. He said that on a recent trip to Chicago he expressed concern to the American government about five bills before Congress which would have an adverse effect on agricultural trade.

Sukarno in Philippines

'Maphilindo' Parley Urged

MANILA (Reuters)—Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio hinted Wednesday that his country hopes for another Southeast Asia summit conference including Malaysia whose establishment Indonesia opposes.

Subandrio was speaking to reporters after the first meeting in a new round of talks between Indonesia's President Sukarno and Philippines President Macapagal. Subandrio said "we started as two; we hope to finish as three."

agreed to "reaffirm adherence" to the August Manila agreement and to continue to work for the "living reality" of a "Maphilindo" confederation of the three "Southeast Asia nations of Malay stock — Indonesia, the Philippines and Malaysia."

In August Sukarno and Macapagal met here with Malaysian Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman and worked out a compromise agreement over the disputed British-backed Malaysia federation which came into being in September.

At the close of the day's discussions a joint statement was issued saying both nations

Sea Search Goes On

HONOLULU (UPI)—The weeklong search for nine men downed in the Pacific last week in a U.S. air force C-124 Globemaster continued doggedly Wednesday despite disappointment in all new clues.

Canada's U.K. Trade Up Millions

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's trade surplus with Britain has halved since 1952, so quickly, that it now almost covers this country's traditional huge deficit with the United States.

Figures released Wednesday for the first 11 months of 1963 show a Canadian deficit with the U.S. of $500,900,000. All but $15,200,000 was covered by the $485,700,000 surplus on trade with the United Kingdom. With Canada also earning larger surpluses in other overseas markets, the over-all excess of exports over imports in the first 11 months was $319,600,000—35 times bigger than the $21,500,000 surplus for the same period of 1962.

This sharp improvement was due partly to a continuing surge of exports, accelerating late in 1963 with large grain shipments to the Soviet bloc. Exports in the 11 months were 8.3 per cent higher than a year earlier. In November alone the gain was 14 per cent.

Meanwhile, imports also were rising quickly to meet the higher consumer demand at home. Though the cumulative

11-month figures show 1963 imports ahead by only 3.2 per cent, they increased 11.7 per cent in November and imports from the U.S. that month were 9.5-per-cent higher.

Trade Minister Sharp, who forecast recently a "quite substantial increase" in Canada's exports in 1964, also cautioned that mounting domestic demand also could bring a resurgence of imports—straining the balance of payments—unless the export position is even further improved.

It was largely on the strength of the higher commodity trade surplus this year that Finance Minister Gordon predicted Monday that end-of-1963 figures would give Canada a balance Continued on Page 3

'Horse and Buggy'

Alberni Roads Hit

ALBERNI — Mayor Fred Bishop, inaugurated for his second term in office, declared that he will continually press for action in 1964 to overcome the situation in which the south largest city on the Island is served by two "horse and buggy" sections of arterial highway.

"Johnston Road from the city boundary to Helen Street and the River Road are in disgraceful condition," the mayor said. "I can honestly say that I receive more complaints from taxpayers about these two roads than all other complaints combined. The rebuilding of the roads is a provincial responsibility."

STREET CHANGES

"Major changes in street levels are planned for Johnston Road, and as a result we are unable to rectify many problems of property owners adjacent to this highway. I refer to needed storm drains, street lighting and sidewalks."

"We realize the many calls on the highways department, but we are long overdue for help on these roads."

"Provincial revenues from this area are among the highest in the province."

NURSING HOME

Mayor Bishop dealt briefly with need for a senior citizens nursing home and a new health unit centre in Alberni.

Mayor Bishop in council's plans for 1964 is the paving project with the remaining seven miles of gravel roads in the city to be treated, along with curb-to-curb paving on some commercial streets. Work is already under way on preparation of some of the streets under the winter employment incentive plan, the mayor said. More storm drain construction, renewal of old and undersized water distribution mains, replacement of more 100-watt radial street lights with modern fluorescent lights are also planned.

EXTRA OFFICER

Mayor Bishop spoke of civic beautification plans, including Ald. Tom Hamilton's project for planting ornamental trees in boulevards or working strips of the downtown streets.

He said the public safety committee should consider provision for an extra man to overcome the shortage of manpower in the RCMP detachment.

He stated that funds are still available in sewer bylaw funds for patching to complete repairs to hard surface cut during sewer installations.

Campbell River

Major Growth Coming

Campbell River will grow to be a city in 10 years time.

Speaking to about 60 Rotarians at a meeting in Campbell River last night Victoria Ald. Geoff Edgelow said:

"The Rotary Club in Campbell River has more than doubled in the past 10 years and the skyline of Campbell River and its waterfront has changed tremendously. "With the opening of the Haida Route to the north, Campbell River will grow to be a city in 10 years time."

"The people of Campbell River are delighted with the appointment of Allan MacLean as publicity commissioner and now feel that they will get the publicity they have wanted to get."

"I am very impressed with the friendliness of Campbell River," he said.

Mr. Edgelow is currently on a special survey trip to the northern part of the Island.

"Campbell River receives more headlines from newspapers throughout America and Canada than any other area on Vancouver Island," he said.

"It is at the top of the list for publicity in B.C. in newspapers out of Canada."

Seminar Theme Settled

NANAIMO — Brotherhood and human relations will be the theme of a seminar-workshop to be held by the Canadian Council of Churches and Jews in Mount St. Peter's Auditorium from 2 to 5 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 18.

Key speaker will be Labor Minister Leslie Peterson. Panelists named are Dr. W. H. Gaudes, Victoria University psychology professor; R. W. Dudley, Canadian Mental Health Association executive director; and George Dubrovic of Oak Bay High School.

The purpose of the workshop is "to provide the opportunity for responsible adults to explore areas of major importance of brotherhood and human relations as a directly concerns a community." There is no registration or fee.

DUNCAN — The date for the annual general meeting of the Duncan and District Association for Retarded Children is Jan. 21.

The meeting, at the Arcadian School, will start at 8 p.m.

DUNCAN — Veteran of the First World War Solomon Le Blanc died at the King's Daughters' Hospital here, Jan. 8.

Born on Cape Breton Island, N.S., in 1892, he served in the First World War overseas with the Canadian Black Watch.

He was wounded and invalided home to Canada in 1915. He was a member of the Cowichan branch, Royal Canadian Legion.

He came to Duncan 17 years ago. Requiem mass will be said at St. Edward's Catholic Church here, Saturday at 10 a.m., followed by interment at St. Ann's Catholic cemetery, Truro, N.S.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plates dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. They're All Edible

New display panel of edible B.C. mollusks, prepared by B.C. government recreation and conservation department, went on display Monday at office of Victoria Visitors Bureau. Display will go to government information office in Vancouver and then to other points in B.C. Recreation department official said most of these edible animals are little known on Vancouver Island and B.C. coast where they are found. Commissioner Allan Maclean of visitors bureau shows geoduck, his favorite.—(Bud Kinman)

Island Youngsters Awarded 4-H Trips

Four Vancouver Island youngsters, two of them from the Victoria area, will get two-week trips to other provinces later this year in recognition of outstanding 4-H work.

With five others from the remainder of B.C. they will be part of an inter-provincial exchange program supported by the Royal Bank.

Albert Huß, 19, of Langford, will travel to Alberta and 17-year-old Linnet Lannon of Sidney will go to Newfoundland. Karen Oland and Linda Venarx of Courtenay will go to Quebec and Nova Scotia respectively.

The youth will attend 4-H activities and visit farms in the provinces they have chosen.

Defence Study Planned

Seven Victoria civil defence zone workers will be among 23 British Columbians studying radioactive defence techniques here next week.

Among the lectures to be attended by the 26 at the Keating Crossroads civil defence college will be one by a provincial agricultural official on the prevention of food contamination.

The course gets underway Jan. 13. Those attending it will later give lectures on radiation defence in their own communities.

The seven Victoria zone students will be W. P. Bay, G. M. Neale, F. D. Preston, S. Motinshaw and H. Piller of Victoria; A. P. Muirgrave of Qualicum and R. H. Donnelly of Powell River.

Airlines Seek Coast Flights

OTTAWA (CP)—Two British Columbia airlines have applied to the Air Transport Board for permission to offer charter flights to 16 West Coast points in competition with regular flights by B.C. Air Lines Ltd.

The two airlines—Alert Bay Air Services of Alert Bay, B.C., and Island Airlines Limited of Campbell River, B.C.—want the federal board to lift protection against competition granted to B.C. air lines under its federal licences.

Centre Quiet

With only about two exceptions, cases in Greater Victoria hospital poison centres followed the year-round trend during the recent holidays.

The exceptions were purely seasonal—a couple of youngsters who chewed on fluid-filled Christmas tree light bulbs.

PROMPT TREATMENT

Fortunately, since these contain hydro-carbon and are definitely dangerous, the patients were given prompt treatment.

Typical were three others which, like the bulb-chewers, involved children from one to three years old.

One found a container of aspirin, ate a box of Ex-lax, and ate a jar of cold pills. All were treated quickly and recovered.

Japanese Tuna Unloaded Today

The last of a 750-ton shipment of Japanese-caught tuna was unloaded Tuesday for B.C. Packers in Victoria.

The top-grade albacore tuna was caught by the Japanese fishing fleet in Pacific waters and shipped here frozen for storage until it is required by B.C. Packers processing plants on the Mainland.

Maverick River Adds to Island Mine Woe

New troubles for Cowichan Copper Co.'s mine at Jordan River came this week when river which has been surging through mine since Dec. 6 changed course, washing away rail staging at left, three small mine locomotives, machine shop, two roads and flat-bed truck (arrow).— (Agnes Flett photos)

Gorge gouged by flood is where Jordan River now bubbles out of mountainside. Engineers and miners were trying yesterday to get water back to river bed to prevent further damage. Higher up, bulldozers are digging diversion channel around original cave-in.

Vocational Aid During 1964 Trustee's Goal

NANAIMO—Trustees of Nanaimo School District 68 held their inaugural meeting and dinner Tuesday night at the Nanaimo District Senior Secondary School.

Forty-five trustees, wives and guests, including Mayor Pete Maffeo, saw Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts swear in the new trustees. Those sworn in were Joe Shook, Richard Baugh, Allen, William Lash and Dr. Roy MacMillan.

There were no new faces. All had been re-elected.

CHOICES MADE

Trustee Shook was again elected chairman and Harold Godfrey vice-chairman.

Mr. Shook said he hoped federal aid in financing vocational courses will be introduced at the senior secondary school.

Mrs. Jean Tully, former trustee who moved from the district, was presented with an engraved silver cigarette box.

Rendezvous At Sea On Friday

Sudbury II is cutting through the Bering Sea at her top speed of 15 knots en route to Adak and a Friday morning rendezvous with the Greek freighter Elli which lost her propeller in the North Pacific New Year's Eve.

The Elli was towed to Adak in the Aleutians by the U.S. Navy tug Mateco. Sudbury II will tow her back to B.C.

Capt. Harley Blagburn took the Sudbury further north for better weather.

You Must Be Expert To Advise Farmers

By KLAUS MUESTER

DUNCAN—In all parts of the province district agriculturalists are one of the most reliable sources farmers can turn to whenever facing a problem, but the role of agricultural adviser has undergone a sharp change, said Ken Jameson, district agriculturalist at Duncan.

A veteran in the service of agriculture for 17 years he came to the Cowichan Valley six years ago after he had served at Prince George and Smithers in the Bulkley Valley.

With his wife and daughters, Lorraine, 14, Roberta, 12, and Ruth, 8, he lives on a small farm on Maple Bay Road.

Smilingly he said, "I still buy my milk," emphasizing that a few head of livestock can be considered only a hobby.

When Mr. Jameson started with the provincial government as agricultural expert at Prince George in 1946—he had finished a painful path which finally led him to success.

As the son of a small dairy farmer who had come to the Chilliwack district from the northern part of England, Mr. Jameson faced a bleak future.

Having reached his senior matriculation at the Chilliwack High School at the height of the depression he could not hope to receive financial backing from either his parents or the government.

As most farmers the parents struggled to keep going. The meagre profit from milk production made it impossible to replace worn-out machinery. It was barely enough to live on.

He recalled his father received $1 per 100 pounds less freight to dairy plant.

However, the lack of money could not affect the young man's ambition to get a degree in agriculture.

He went to work on a dairy farm near his home. "We milked 60 Holstein cows which was a big herd in those days and put up between 200-300 tons of hay, all by hand," he said.

For two years he saved his monthly wages of $25 and enrolled in the normal school at Vancouver. After one year he was ready for his first teaching position.

From 60 applicants the Chilliwack school board chose Mr. Jameson and from 1945 until 1946 when he joined RCAF he rode horseback to and from the one-room school where he taught grades 1-4.

Summer holidays he used to further his agricultural training at UBC and following his discharge from the air force as a flying officer in 1945, he completed his agricultural training there.

While in the air force he served in the British Isles, Egypt and Turkey.

In 1946 the young bachelor of science started his agricultural career at Prince George, and when he was transferred to

Indian Treaty Case

Decision in March

NANAIMO—"When is a treaty not a treaty?" was the riddle asked by prosecutor Don Cunliffe at the resumption of the appeal of David Bob and Clifford White at Nanaimo, Wednesday.

"When it's a land conveyance," was the answer he gave in refutation to arguments by Vancouver lawyer Tom Berger that old treaties gave the Indians the right to hunt for food at will over unoccupied land.

Nanaimo's now-famed Indian treaty case was resumed Wednesday before Judge J. H. Swencisky at 10:30 a.m.

The appeal arose out of the conviction and sentence, by Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts, of the defendants—Bob and White—for being in possession of deer hides out of season, Sept. 25, 1963.

At that time they brought up as their defence a 'treaty' signed by Gov. James Douglas giving the Indians the right to hunt and fish over unoccupied lands.

NOT APPLY

The magistrate ruled that the alleged treaty did not apply in the case and convictions followed.

An appeal against this decision was begun in December, in Nanaimo, and lawyer Tom Berger, for the appellants, argued that both a treaty signed in Nanaimo, by Gov. James Douglas in Victoria and a local treaty signed in Nanaimo gave the Indians special hunting rights.

SOLD BY INDIANS

Mr. Berger called Dr. Willard Ireland, provincial archivist who produced a copy of the Nanaimo treaty in which land stretching from Commercial Inlet, 12 miles up the Nanaimo River, was sold by the Indians to the Hudson's Bay Co. and signed by the governor. The Indians received 635 white blankets, 12 blue blankets and 20 inferior blankets for their land.

In his argument, Mr. Berger brought up treaties as far back as a proclamation by King George III in 1763 which stated the rights of the aboriginals to hunt and fish over unoccupied lands and which has never been revoked.

CROWN CASE

When the hearing was resumed yesterday, Mr. Cunliffe based the Crown case on three main points in refutation of the defence argument.

He contended that the alleged treaties were not in fact treaties, but conveyances of land and that Sir James Douglas signed them in his capacity as factor of the Hudson's Bay Co. and not in his role as governor.

Mr. Cunliffe also claimed that the proclamation of 1763 could not apply to B.C. as it had not been discovered at that time.

GAME LAWS

As a further argument, he said the Indian Act, in a revision of 1861 under section 87, gave the provinces jurisdiction over the Indians in regard to game laws and, although other provinces had provisions in their game acts for Indians to hunt over unoccupied lands, the B.C. Game Act had no such provision.

Minister Can't Teach

PORT ALBERNI (CPI)—The department of education has backed the local school board in its interpretation of a section of the Public Schools Act which forbids ordained ministers from teaching.

W. H. Gurney, district superintendent, said, Wednesday the department informed him that under Section 62 of the Act it is illegal for any clergyman to teach in B.C.

The school board sought the interpretation after Rev. Bruce Fleming of the Nazarene church here was barred from substitute teaching in February, 1963, after an unnamed trustee complained the section of the Act was being violated.

VOICE CRYING

Mr. Fleming has said the Act is discriminatory and intends to protest to Victoria.

He said Wednesday he is a "voice crying in the wilderness."

Unless I get the backing of some interested organization I have no idea what will happen.

Castro Wants More

LONDON (UPI)—Cuban Premier Fidel Castro was reported Wednesday to have sent a new trade mission to Europe to try to buy heavy machinery as controversy continued over deal for sale of $11,000,000 worth of British buses to Cuba.

Britain, concerned over angry American reaction, said it was powerless to halt the sale of the 400 buses because the arrangement was a private deal. A spokesman for the British Leyland Motor Corp. said delivery of the buses would begin in April.

Reports from Havana said the new trade mission was going first to Prague and then planned stops in London, Paris and Vienna.

Road Idea

U.S. Aid In B.C.?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senator Mike Mansfield called Wednesday for the U.S. and Canada to share the cost of building the Alaska Highway. The senate majority leader introduced a bill to authorize appropriation of money if Canada agrees to pay at least half the cost.

He said the U.S. should join Canada in the work even though the road is entirely on Canadian soil. The funds would be used for the Canadian portion from Dawson Creek to Fairbanks.

The legislation would require that Canada agree not to charge tolls or to apply taxes against U.S. users which are not applied equally to Canadians.

Trapped Miner Rescued

MACKAY, Idaho (AP)—Miner Stanley Johnson was rescued from a 12-by-six-foot underground cell late Wednesday after being trapped more than 27 hours by a mine cave-in.

Rescuers drilled into the side tunnel that was Johnson's sanctuary from falling rock 1,156 feet below the surface. They pulled him to safety. He was cold and tired from his long ordeal but otherwise in good condition.

Quietly Helped Jews, Says Paul

Pius Did All He Could

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Osservatore Romano said Wednesday the late Pope Pius XII did all he could, sometimes acting secretly and "with true heroism," to aid Jewish victims of Nazi persecution during the Second World War.

The Vatican City newspaper was commenting on Pope Paul VI's vigorous defence of Pius XII Sunday

during his pilgrimage to the Holy Land.

Osservatore Romano said Pope Paul's comments to Israeli President Zalman Shazar concerned "a well-known theatrical work." He was obviously referring to German author Rolf Hochhuth's play, The Representation, which criticizes Pius' role during the Nazi oppression of the Jews.

"It is false that the tragedy of the Jews and of so many creatures judged at the time as of inferior descent was not understood or shared," said Osservatore. "The opposite is true: the pope and the church did what they could with an assiduous effort, often hidden and hence ignored by many, a daily effort, sometimes carried out with true heroism."

"Nor did they fear also to go beyond the limits that a certain common sense insisted on assigning to their action in history. Nothing that touches man can leave the church and the visible head that leads it over the centuries indifferent."

"Everyone, even those who do not share the Christian faith, must look at the church with confidence and hope. She has not betrayed and she will not betray."

When a representative sampling of various seed was inspected in the Russian federation more than 70 per cent was found to be unsatisfactory.

COFFIN PROBE RULED

QUEBEC (CP)—The Quebec government Wednesday ordered a royal-commission investigation into the trial and execution of Wilbert Coffin, hanged in 1956 for the murder of three American hunters.

The decision, taken at a cabinet meeting, was announced by Attorney-General Rene Hamel. It followed revival of a controversy on the question whether a miscarriage of justice occurred in the Coffin case. Publication of a book late last year claiming that Coffin, a Gaspe prospector, was innocent, provoked the issue.

ONE MEMBER

The commission will have one member — Mr. Justice Roger Brossard of Montreal Superior Court.

The order — in — council setting up the commission specifically orders an investigation into "the credibility of statements" made by Francis Thompson to the police in Montreal, Feb. 10, 1956.

LATELY RETRACTED

Thompson told police he committed the murders, but later retracted the statement.

The commission was ordered to inquire into "the actions of officers and police agents and all other persons having participated, directly or indirectly, in the preparation and presentation of the evidence used in all procedures which led to the execution of Wilbert Coffin, Feb. 10, 1956."

INNOCENT

Appointment of the royal commission follows publication in Montreal of a book by Jacques Hebert titled 'L'Accusé des Assassins de Coffin' (I Accuse Coffin's Assassins) which claimed Coffin was innocent of the 1953 death of three American hunters from Hollidaysburg, Pa. Technically, Coffin was convicted of the death of one of the hunters.

Premier Lesage, who was standing beside Mr. Hamel when the announcement was made, said Mr. Hebert would have a chance to call witnesses to present his side of the case.

Showdown Demanded

TORONTO (UPI) — Reid Scott, New Democratic member of parliament for the Toronto riding of Scarborough, said last night he will ask Justice Minister Lionel Chevrier to table in the Commons all correspondence between Ottawa and Quebec City in the Coffin affair.

'Messiah' Purges Police Force

ACCRA (UPI)—Ghana president Kwame Nkrumah Wednesday ordered the arrest of this African nation's former opposition leader and purged top police ranks in fierce retribution for last Thursday's abortive attempt on his life.

A government announcement said detention orders were issued against former opposition leader Dr. J. B. Danquah, deputy police commissioner, S. D. Amanin and assistant police commissioner M. K. Awuku.

In addition police commissioner E. R. T. Adjitey and seven assistant police commissioners were fired.

'Maphilindo' Parley Urged

MANILA (Reuters) — Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio hinted Wednesday that his country hopes for another Southeast Asia summit conference including Malaysia whose establishment Indonesia opposes.

Subandrio was speaking to reporters after the first meeting in a new round of talks between Indonesia's President Sukarno and Philippines President Macapagal. Subandrio said "we started as two; we hope to finish as three."

In August Sukarno and Macapagal met here with Malaysian Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman and worked out a compromise agreement over the disputed British-backed Malaysia federation which came into being in September.

At the close of the day's discussions a joint statement was issued saying both nations

Nkrumah Took Off When Bullets Flew

ACCRA (AP)—President Nkrumah may not have been the main target for five bullets fired in his direction last week.

A widely circulated unofficial report in Accra, the Ghanaian capital, tells of a personal feud between Nkrumah's bodyguard, who was killed in the gunplay, and a young policeman held as the attempted assassin of the president.

Nkrumah, 54, and dubbed "the messiah" by his followers, had been expected to carry out the purge over since his dramatic escape from the third attempt on his life in 16 months.

FIVE SHOTS
In the shooting attack last Thursday, five shots were fired at Nkrumah as he walked to his car from his heavily-guarded office at Flagstaff House in Accra.

Only last month Nkrumah showed his strong hand when a court acquitted former foreign minister Ako Adjei and information minister Tawiah Adamah and former executive secretary of the convention peoples' party H. Ofori Crabbe on charges of treason which stemmed from a bomb attack on Nkrumah in August.

Nkrumah fired 68-year-old Ghana Chief Justice Sir Arku Korsah the day after the acquittals.

While it may seem unlikely that Ametewee would use a rifle to settle a personal grudge in the presence of Nkrumah, the report was widely circulated in Accra within hours after the shooting.

Radio Ghana and Accra's three daily newspapers are government-controlled and print nothing except what the government wants reported. Under these conditions, a highly developed word of mouth communications system has sprung up. By sifting fact and speculation from sources in rumor-ridden Ghana, this outline of the shooting and its aftermath emerges:

Nkrumah stepped out of his offices in Flagstaff House about 1 p.m. for a drive to luncheon at his residence, Christiansburg Castle. He was dressed in a white jacket believed to be bullet-proof.

AT HIS SIDE

Dagarti was at his side as Nkrumah descended three steps toward the limousine. At least six other persons—a chauffeur, policemen and office staff—were within 30 yards of Nkrumah.

A uniformed policeman walked swiftly toward the president and opened fire. He was less than 20 feet away.

Raab

He Led Austria Back to Liberty

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Former chancellor Julius Raab died Wednesday night, remembered by his countrymen as the man who led Austria back to independence after the Nazi and post-war occupation.

Long a sufferer from diabetes and a liver ailment, the 72-year-old Raab was stricken at Baden Monday, and lapsed into unconsciousness as he was being brought to Vienna's Floridsdorf Hospital.

Wednesday morning Raab fell into a deep coma, received the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church, and died, his wife, Hermine, at his side.

Dr. Ferdinand Nagl, Raab's physician, said a blood clot had formed in the lung, causing heart failure.

Shortly before Raab's death, Pope Paul sent a cable saying: "The Holy Father sends apostolic blessings from all his heart to the sick former chancellor and prays to God to give him a full measure of mercy, divine consolation and help."

Austrian leaders of both parties praised Raab, a Conservative, for his part in getting the Austrian independence treaty of 1955.

CAREER CLIMAX

President Adolf Schaerf, a Socialist, said Raab's political career reached a climax "when the state treaty and the withdrawal of foreign troops from Austria came about."

Chancellor Alfons Gorbach, a Conservative, said Raab's "determined work for obtaining the state treaty will never be forgotten." Both Schaerf and Gorbach praised Raab's efforts to achieve a collaboration between the Conservatives and the Socialists.

Canada's U.K. Trade Up Millions

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's trade surplus with Britain has ballooned so big, so quickly, that it now almost covers this country's traditional huge deficit with the United States.

Figures released Wednesday for the first 11 months of 1963 show a Canadian deficit with the U.S. of $500,000,000. All but $15,300,000 was covered by the $485,700,000 surplus on trade with the United Kingdom.

With Canada also earning larger surpluses in other overseas markets, the over-all excess of exports over imports in the first 11 months was $319,000,000—15 times bigger than the $21,300,000 surplus for the same period of 1962.

This sharp improvement was due partly to a continuing surge of exports, accelerating late in 1963 with large grain shipments to the Soviet bloc. Exports in the 11 months were 8.3 per cent higher than a year earlier. In November alone the gain was 14 per cent.

Meanwhile, imports also were rising quickly to meet the higher consumer demand at home. Though the cumulative

11-month figures show 1963 imports ahead by only 3.3 per cent, they increased 11.7 per cent in November and imports from the U.S. that month were 9.6-per-cent higher.

Trade Minister Sharp, who forecast recently a "quite substantial increase" in Canada's exports in 1964, also cautioned that mounting domestic demand also could bring a resurgence of imports—straining the balance of payments—unless the export position is even further improved.

It was largely on the strength of the higher commodity trade surplus this year that Finance Minister Gordon predicted Monday that end-of-1963 figures would give Canada a balance
